Taxi!

Be prepared for a long wait next time you have to call for a cab

by NANCY GOTLER

Taxicabs are the only form of public transportation some suburban communities have, and a Herald survey shows taxi service is generally erratic and unreliable in the Northwest suburbs.

Waits of 30 minutes after a cab has been called are commonplace, the survey revealed.

An exception to the rule of spotty service is Des Plaines, where cabs came promptly after each call by a Herald reporter who did not identify his occupation when requesting a cab.

Service is especially poor in the afternoon hours and in residential neighborhoods.

CONSISTENTLY POOR service was recorded in Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows. Delays from 20 minutes to 1 hour and 20 minutes were found in Buffalo Grove; in Rolling Meadows reporters waited from 20 to 50 minutes after calling a cab.

The survey was conducted by 10 Herald reporters over a three-day period. Waiting periods ranged from two minutes to two hours as reporters summoned cabs during morning, afternoon and evening hours to residential neighborhoods, downtown areas and outlying shopping districts.

With the exception of Arlington Heights — where delays ranged from five minutes to two hours — the number of licensed taxis in a community corresponded with the length of waits.

In communities with more licensed taxis — such as Mount Prospect which has 30 cabs and Des Plaines which has 20 — service is generally fast. Communities with no licensed cabs, such as Buffalo Grove and Hoffman Estates, usually have longer delays.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, with 26 licensed cabs, is the exception to the more-cabs, better-service rule.

Fares are set by each community and range from 50 cents for the first-one-seventh mile in Hoffman Estates to 70 cents for the first one-seventh mile in Arlington Heights, Palatine and Schaumburg.

At least one taxi company executive, Tim Vana, co-owner of Martin and Palatine A-One Cab companies, which service Palatine, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows, did not dispute The Herald's findings.

"I'm not surprised it takes so long in the Northwest area, especially in Rolling Meadows and Palatine," he said. "Since we lost our lease to operate out of the Palatine train depot, we are headquartered in Des Plaines. It's just going to take 20 minutes for a cab to get from there to Rolling Meadows.

"Our Des Plaines service is very good," Vana said, "and I try to tell people how long a wait it'll be when they call. But if it's longer and they call us up again what can we do? We're caught with our pants down."

HE ADMITTED his company's service in Palatine and surrounding communities is inadequate. "We're just trying to keep our foot in the door in Palatine until we can afford to get enough cars to service the area properly."

Vana had a heated telephone conversation after a reporter waited two-hours for a taxi in Arlington Heights in which Vana hung up in mid-conversation. Of that incident, Vana said, "I tried to refer the call to another company, but it didn't work. I try to be as polite as possible, but it really gets hectic in there (the dispatching room) sometimes."

Another owner, Jerry Elisco, president of the T&D Cab Service which operates from Elk Grove Village, Rosemont and Park Ridge, attributed waits of 30 and 43 minutes to coincidence.

"Last week naturally would be the week the reporter took the cab," he said, "because that week I had one driver in the hospital with a heart attack and had to let another one go because he wasn't doing a good job. Usually 15 minutes is the most our customers wait. It's just coincidence that we had two drivers out last week when the reporter rode."

HOWEVER SOME customers, like Mrs. Robert Hutchins of Arlington Heights, confirmed The Herald's findings and contended the problem has existed in the area for at least a year.

In a Nov. 1 letter to The Herald and Village Pres. James T. Ryan, Mrs. Hutchins, a self-described "steady customer" of the Arlington Heights City Cab Co., said, "When I called Mr. (Robert) Birks (the owner) again two weeks ago he said that seven of his drivers quit — meaning fewer cabs on the road."

Mrs. Hutchins, who does not drive, said she has waited as long as three hours for a taxi and has missed beauty parlor and doctor appointments because drivers either were late or never arrived.

Birks, who also owns Wheeling, Prospect and Elk Grove Village cab companies, admitted long waits are a problem, but said he's pinched by inflation and can't afford enough equipment to service the area adequately.

"In my business I just break even," Birks, who also is president of the Illinois Cab Assn., said. "I have new equipment, including four more cabs, coming in, which will cure the situation, especially in Arlington Heights.

"One of my biggest problems is keeping drivers," he said. "They tell me they would rather quit and collect $80 a week on welfare than drive a cab for $250 or $275 a week."

BIRKS IS supporting a bill now pending in the General Assembly which would exempt taxi companies from paying the 14-cent-per-gallon state and federal gasoline tax.

Of Mrs. Hutchins' complaints, he said, "If we're not there within 15 minutes, she closes her door and refuses to come out. Then I've wasted a driver's time and gas."

Another complaining customer, an elderly woman, recalled the day several weeks ago when she and her diabetic sister were stranded at a shopping center waiting for an Arlington Heights City Cab Co. driver who never arrived.

"I explained to them that she is sick and must eat promptly," the woman said. "Finally, after waiting an hour and a half and making three more phone calls to the dispatcher another relative came to pick us up. But by the time we got home my sister could hardly make it across the parking lot."

ANOTHER HERALD staff writer, also of Arlington Heights, had a sim-

11 p.m. closing time for parks to be considered

Arlington Heights park commissioners will consider closing parks at 11 p.m. each night to curb vandalism if an agreement can be reached with village police to patrol the park sites.

The decision is part of an ongoing debate between police and park commissioners over who is responsible for law enforcement in the parks.

Four of five commissioners interviewed said police protection is the function of the village and that the park district is responsible only for recreation.

Comr. Kathryn Graham could not be reached for comment.

TRUSTEE ROBERT H. Miller, chairman of the community services committee which is studying the issue for the village, disagreed.

"The village is now paying for police patroling in the parks," he said, "but if it becomes necessary to have more police above the normal number patroling I think the park board should consider helping pay for it."

When asked if he would approve appropriating park district funds for policing parks, Comr. Robert P. Rohleder said, "Absolutely not. Our whole purpose is to provide recreation. We will consider anything but that to help the police.

"All we're asking," he said, "is for the same safety that is granted homes and businesses."

Parking lots and fieldhouses on park sites are closed at 11 p.m.

Rampaging technology alarms officials

Future weapons may spell doom

by NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

Some Pentagon and intelligence community officials, alarmed by what they term "rampaging technology," are warning that advanced weapons systems of the future could spell doom for efforts to control the strategic arms race.

Knowledgeable sources say lasers and a range of other high-technology weapons now being developed would make arms limitations talks "virtually impossible" by precluding any feasible way to check compliance.

In addition, they say, the advanced weapons would defy conventional forms of strategic defense planning.

"The technology, in my view, is outrunning our ability to keep up with it in terms of loophole-free agreements," said one Pentagon expert. The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks "agreement already is in trouble and it's not going to get any better."

SKEPTICISM ABOUT success of future SALT-like negotiations stems from development of a new breed of "space-based" weapons systems as well as the increased accuracy of nuclear warhead delivery systems and improved intelligence and detection capabilities.

The concern is not universally felt. But a number of military and intelligence agency officials indicated in telephone interviews they felt cause for at least some alarm about theoretically possible developments.

Most weapons systems of the future are now only in research or developmental stages.

The government has given top priority to a high-energy laser program. But military and scientific experts agree prospects for remote laser warfare in space, isolated from the general public, are years away.

INSIDERS GENERALLY agreed a complete rethinking in conventional military and arms control planning will be necessary to cope with emerging military technologies.

"Lots of things are moving with considerable speed, and I don't see that we're going to go far in trying to stop these technologies," said a Defense Dept. strategist. "One has to plan on the assumption that, whether it's high-energy lasers, high-accuracy missiles or sophisticated cruise missiles, they're going to come.

"My feeling is that it's already gotten more complicated than our means to control these things. We've already got problems and it's getting worse."

Future deployment of space-based weapons systems "is not a pleasant prospect," an intelligence specialist said.

"This is a harbinger of things to come," he said. "We're up against rampaging technology at a time when the Soviets have tended to exploit loopholes in the existing (SALT) agreemtns."

Filters hurt smokers more: study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some filter cigarets, while lower in nicotine and tar than nonfilter brands, may deliver more poisonous gases to the smoker, according to a Reader's Digest study released Sunday.

Rather than testing for tar and nicotine content, a study sponsored by the magazine examined 28 brands of cigarets — including several of the new mild varieties — for hydrogen cyanide, nitrogen oxides and carbon monoxide content.

Carbon monoxide is responsible for heart disease, the Digest said, and the other two "poison gases" are associated with chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

In test resuots published in this month's edition, the magazine reported "some low-tar filter brands, such as Merit King and Fact King, put out more nitrogen oxides than such high-tar cigarets as Camel, Winston Filter King and Lucky Strike regular.

"THE ONLY brands consistently low in tar, nicotine and the three gases are Now King and Carlton 70," it said.

Cigarets low in tar and nicotine may pose an additional hazard to

DAMP to meet today on 20-year lake plan

The DAMP Water Commission's 20-year-old plan for bringing Lake Michigan water to the Northwest suburbs will be reviewed tonight by elected officials from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The DAMP proposal calls for the member communities to finance building a pipeline directly to Lake Michigan with a separate filtration plant.

The plan is contrary to one urged by SHARE + 3, which recently proposed getting lake water from Chicago by building a pipeline to OHare Field.

Communities in SHARE + 3 are Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Buffalo Grove and Mount Prospect.

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig, who helped organize tonight's meeting, is urging elected officials to support the DAMP proposal as a better way to meet the water needs of the Northwest suburban area. The SHARE + 3 proposal, Harwig said, does not address the water problem on a regional basis.

Tonight's meeting will focus on the DAMP plan, first proposed in 1957.

No alternative on B-1: Rumsfeld

WASHINGTON (UPI — No good alternative has been found to the B-1 bomber as a successor to the present generation of B-52 manned bombers, Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld said Sunday.

Rumsfeld said he has made no final decision on the controversial supersonic bomber, but indicated he may recommend before Jimmy Carter's inauguration Jan. 20 that the craft be ordered into production.

The defense secretary said suggestions that he opposed an arrangement designed to give the incoming Carter administration extra time to make decisions about producing the B-1 were "absolutely incorrect."

The new administration will have every opportunity to make a reasonable decision, he said.

RUMSFELD WAS interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" program.

The former North suburban congressman said he will end a 14-year career of government service when the Ford administration leaves office, but that he hopes to return someday.

While wishing Carter well, he said the "newcomers" of Carter's administration will have to face the facts of Soviet military expansion and other aspects of the international military scene the same way he did.

"I am absolutely convinced it is not in our country's interests to reduce the defense budget in real terms," Rumsfeld said of Carter's plan to cut Pentagon spending.

Rumsfeld said separate land, sea and air defense systems are needed to keep America strong.

"NO ONE thus far has found an adequate alternative to the B-1 as the successor to the B-52," he said. "The alternative is to simply allow the B-52 to age and go into disuse."

Following that alternative would force the United States to rely solely on land-based and submarine-launched missiles, which would be unwise, he said.

Asked about reports that a new bombardment gun on which the Navy wants to spend millions of dollars on does not work, Rumsfeld replied: "That's not clear. Therefore, decisions haven't been made."

Timmons running for top village post

Hoffman Estates Trustee Melvin E. Timmons said Sunday he will seek the Republican Party endorsement for village president. Timmons, 47, who is completing his first term on the village board, may battle Village Pres. Virginia Hayter for the GOP nod. Mrs. Hayter has not announced if she will run for reelection and Sunday refused to comment on Timmons' announcement. Timmons and Mrs. Hayter were GOP running mates when Mrs. Hayter was elected village president in 1973. Timmons said he does not think a contest for the endorsement would hurt the Republican Organization of Hoffman Esstates.

Unlicensed cab use probe target

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles J. Zettek says he will investigate the use of unlicensed taxi cabs in the village. Last week, a Herald reporter called T & D Cab Service of Elk Grove Village twice and in both cases the cab drivers said they were from Rosemont. The taxis did not display Elk Grove Village lettering on the outside of the cab as required by village ordinance. Company president Jerry Elisco said two drivers were sick the day the Herald reporter rode his cabs, but he gave no reason for Rosemont cabs being used in Elk Grove Village. "It is something that disturbs me," Zettek said. "There are rules and they (T & D) should have to follow them like everybody else."

Officials consider salary raise

Des Plaines aldermen are considering raising the salaries of the city's elected officials. Salaries of the mayor and city clerk, both full-time posts have not been raised since 1973. The pay for the city's 16 aldermen, part-time posts, has been the same since 1969. Salaries for elected officials are set by ordinance every four years and cannot be raised annually like those of other city workers. Under the proposed increases, the mayor's salary would rise from $25,000 to $32,757, the city's clerk's from $13,500 to $17,689 and each alderman's from $1,800 to $3,379.

Thoughts on a Mattress

I guess it is no wonder that people are so skeptical of advertising these days.

Glancing through the Sunday papers I saw ads for suits, dresses, shoes, jewelry, mattresses . . . 20% to 60% savings . . . now 50% off . . . regular price $99.95, now $59.95 . . . save $20.00 to $40.00 . . . and on and on.

If a piece of merchandise has $100.00 worth of material and quality in its construction, there is no way a retailer or manufacturer in his right mind is going to sell it for 20% or 40% off without losing money . . . and they are not in business to lose money.

That is why we don't run sales!!!

Our prices are based on the actual material and quality work that goes into each piece.

Our prices are low because we sell directly from the FACTORY. We don't pile a retail store's profits on top of a manufacturer's profits . . . And we don't pay for a lot of fancy, expensive retail store space . . . And we don't deliver to a retail warehouse and then pay for another delivery to a customer . . . we deliver directly from the factory to the customer.

Our prices are low because we cut out a lot of expensive frills and overhead.

So come to the FACTORY and buy a QUALITY mattress at a low price!!!

Arctic air puts area on freeze

Bitterly cold weather will continue to freeze the Northwest suburbs today and Tuesday as a high pressure area above the Great Plains continues to push Arctic air this way.

The National Weather Service said Sunday temperatures are not expected to rise above single digits today and will plummet tonight to about 5 to 10 below zero. Skies will be fair and clear. Tuesday and Wednesday temperatures will range from zero to 20 degrees with clear skies.

A weather service official said the cold will continue through most of the week, with a warming trend expected Thursday.

ILLINOIS STATE Police from District 17 in Des Plaines said Sunday there were few accidents reported in the last half of the Thanksgiving holiday because of clearing roads. No major injuries have been reported.

Winter's first storm of the year Friday night caused more than 50 auto accidents on icy roads in the area.

In the nation, at least 442 persons were killed in traffic between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 6 p.m. Sunday.

In Chicago, an early Sunday morning temperature reading of 7 degrees was not a record, but the combination of the cold and the wind sent the wind chill factor to 10 below zero.

Record low temperatures were set from the Western Great Lakes to the Rockies. It was 23 below zero at Hibbing, Minn.; 16 below at Park Falls, Wis.; 12 below zero at Williston, N.D. and Rapid City, S.D.; 10 below at Grand Island, Neb.; 7 below at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and 2 above at Kansas City, Mo.

Harsh cold also hit sections of the plains and Midwest with rain drenching the Florida Panhandle touching off minor floods, affecting low-lying roads and houses in that state.

No fancy frills for Carter Administration

by WESLEY G. PIPPERT

First in a series

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Three days after the election, Jimmy Carter talked to reporters at his mother's Pond House. It was as though nothing had changed. The President-elect was wearing heavy work shoes, denim shirt, blue jeans.

The scene was symbolic. As president, Carter probably will bring to Washington a lifestyle much less pretentious and formal than any recent President. And he will pursue relentlessly the same goals he campaigned for — government reorganization, a balanced budget and tax and welfare reform.

His style:

In perhaps every one of his 1,400 campaign speeches, Carter portrayed himself as a small-town businessman and farmer who embarked on his pursuit of the presidency short of funds and shorter of fame.

He said he was the first member of his father's family to graduate high school. He told how he was raised in a predominantly black community. When asked, he told of his faith in Jesus Christ.

Unlike other politicians who still boast of their long-distant humble origins, Carter now, at this moment, still lives where he was raised: Plains, Ga., Population 683.

DURING THE campaign he returned to Plains every few days. As president he will come home about once a month — "10 times a year," he told one person here.

Press Secretary and confidante Jody Powell explained why: "He just relaxes better in Plaines."

Carter shunned President Ford's offer of Air Force One during the transition period, partly because the high cost of operating the elaborate jet would have to be paid from his transition budget. But partly it was the same thinking that had caused him to eschew limousines during his campaign.

A few days ago, Carter flew to a meeting with congressional leaders at Lovejoy, Ga., in a twin-engine plane owned by Tom Peterson, an old friend and operator of the grass-strip Plains airport.

IT WAS rainy and cloudy. But Carter grumbled in protest that the Secret Service had directed that he be driven an extra 15 miles to Americus, Ga., which has an airport with hard-surface runway.

On the way home, the Secret Service said Peterson should land at Albany, Ga., a larger, better-equipped airport 40 miles away. As Peterson was flying over Plains he remarked that visibility was sufficient to land. Carter ignored the anxious agents and told him to do so.

When Carter was preparing to go to Washington for his first visit since the election, he twice made trips between his home and the car carrying his bags and his wife's.

At his inaugural, Carter will wear a business suit, not formal attire. He will have inaugural parties, not balls.

IN THE White House, the Carters reportedly will serve only wine, not hard liquor. They will go faithfully to a Baptist Church, not hold religious services in the East Room.

Daughter Amy, a fourth grader, will go to a public school in Washington, not one of the several exclusive private schools catering to politicians' children. Carter will play tennis, a sport his father loved, and go home to Georgia to hunt and fish. He will not play golf.

His administration:

Carter won the Democratic presidential nomination in part by welding a grand coalition. With the polarized 1972 candidacy of Sen. George McGovern well in mind, Carter demonstrated a capacity not only to communicate with diverse groups but to bring them shoulder-to-shoulder.

He went to stock car races and rock music picnics and gave interviews to religious publications and Playboy magazine. He wooed and won union leaders, mayors such as Richard J. Daley of Chicago and Coleman Young of Detroit, and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and other southern Democratic politicians.

After he won the election, he moved to heal wounds. He invited U.S. Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger to Plains. During the campaign Carter criticized him as "the Lone Ranger" of a secretive U.S. foreign policy. In Plains, Carter called him "my good friend" and gave him a tour of Main Street.

THIS DIVERSITY, this tendency toward bridging gaps, surely will reflect itself in his administration. Little-known persons, certainly non-Washington figures, will receive many of his top appointments. There may be a Republican or two on his team.

There will be certain representation from groups close to the core of Carter's life — blacks and other minorities. His overwhelming vote from blacks — which, indeed, may have given him the election — grew out of his remarkable rapport with them.

In that Pond House meeting, Carter told reporters that one campaign promise he intended to keep was to appoint large numbers of blacks and other minorities — perhaps even in disproportionate numbers — to help make up for their historic exclusion from the American mainstream.

Carter announced an advisory panel of 11 persons to assist him in making appointments. It included four women and three blacks. The second person appointed to a post in the administration — Powell as press secretary was the first — was Georgia State Rep. Ben Brown, a black man.

IN SOME ways, however, Carter has remained aloof.

After he won the nomination, it was widely assumed he would expand his inner circle of Georgians for the fall campaign or perhaps even replace them. He didn't. He still hasn't.

Atlanta lawyer Jack Watson, not Washington powerhouse Clark Clifford, is in charge of transition duties. Carter's inner circle still consists of Jody Powell, Hamilton Jordan, Charles Kirbo, Robert Lipshutz, Georgians all.

His program:

During his long campaign, Carter spoke repeatedly of the need for better relationships — between Congress and the White House, between government and the people. A planner himself, he spoke of the need for planning — in education, transportation, in other areas of society.

He said his No. 1 domestic priority was finding jobs for the 8 million unemployed. He spoke of the need for comprehensive health care and welfare reform, and said he would be ready to proceed in this area soon after inauguration. He also proposed tax reform, but said this would require a year's study.

When the Republican National Convention pictured him as an irresponsible spender, Carter said he would balance the budget by the end of his first term even if it meant delaying some of his social programs.

AND HE spoke about, probably more than any other topic, the need for government reorganization.

Some Washington observers speculated Carter would soft-pedal his ambitious legislative agenda in the interests of harmony with Congress, where the probable new Democratic leaders — Sen. Robert Byrd and Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill — may be far tougher than their predecessors.

These observers were wrong.

When Carter went to the Lovejoy meeting, he made a symbolic concession to Congress by going to their turf — Sen. Herman Talmadge's antebellum mansion pictured in the opening scenes of "Gone With the Wind."

Once their Southern-style meal was over, Carter told the congressional leaders he would have "specific proposals, including tax reform and welfare reform, carrying out the promises I made to the American people."

AND HE made a top priority renewal of the old Hoover commission law, under which a president may reorganize the executive branch subject to congressional veto.

"I would like for Congress to take the fullest possible action to direct me to make the executive branch efficient," said Carter, as he stood alongside the congressional powerhouses.

TO EMPHASIZE the point, a high Carter source told reporters later that the President-elect had asked the congressional leaders to "accommodate" him on that point because it was of "particular importance" to him.

Several of the leaders gave Carter reason to be optimistic.

Retiring Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said "all the omens are good."

Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin said Carter would receive a "very cooperative" reception on Capitol Hill.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine predicted "a honeymoon."

O'Neill said Congress would "work with him" toward Carter's objectives of peace in the world, a strong economy and a balanced budget. But the Boston politician refused to say he would make Carter's legislative priorities his own priorities.

JIMMY CARTER will probably bring to Washington a lifestyle much less formal than any recent President. Here, he relaxes while on vacation on St. Simons Island, Ga.

• Rosalind Russell, 63, who started her long acting career in a tent show and became the queen of sophisticated film comedy, died Sunday morning at her home in Beverly Hills after a long fight with cancer. Miss Russell, "Roz" to her friends, highlighted her career with her unforgettable portrayal of "Auntie Mame" on both the stage and screen. Mame, the brittle, charming protector of a precocious nephew, was her favorite role. Miss Russell's illness was complicted by severe rheumatoid arthritis.

• Sen. Barry Goldwater, vacationing in Florida and reflecting upon the virtues of the quiet life, says he may give up politics in four years. "I'll be 71 then, and 70 is an age when you should consider getting out of politics," the Arizona Republican said. Goldwater, who is recovering from hip surgery and walks with a cane, said one of his dislikes about Washington is the cocktail party circuit. His wife is the socialite in the family, he added. "In Washington, I give my wife two parties a week, and we get home by 11 p.m. She could go all day and all night, but I like to stay home," he said.

• Premier Mudar Badran of Jordan has submitted the resignation of his four-month-old government to King Hussein and then immediately formed a new 19-man cabinet, Amman radio said Sunday. The radio gave no official reason for the cabinet shuffle Saturday night, in which five government members were dismissed and seven new members appointed.

• Soap opera star Emily McLaughlan, who has been in critical condition for more than a week from internal bleeding, remained under intensive care Sunday at a Los Angeles hospital. Miss McLaughlan, who has played head nurse Jesse Brewer in the television series "General Hospital" for 13 years, was hospitalized Nov. 18 with an undisclosed ailment.

• The leader of a civil rights group says 13 black Marines, arrested for attacking seven white Marines with screw drivers at Camp Pendleton, Calif., were breaking up a Ku Klux Klan meeting on the base. Lt. Col. Dan Brown confirmed Saturday that authorities are investigating the charges made by the San Diego Urban League's executive director, Clarence Pendleton Jr. "We have heard of the existence of such a group," Brown said of the KKK charges. "However, we've got an assault case on our hands which is our primary problem at this moment."

Typical inmate on death row black, unwed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The typical death row inmate is a black, unmarried high school dropout, according to figures furnished by the U.S. Census Bureau in a report issued Sunday.

The report, "Capital Punishment 1975," was published by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and showed a dramatic increase in the number of death sentences handed down in 1975, especially by Southern courts.

The LEAA said the census figures showed 285 death sentences were rendered in 1975, compared to only 151 in 1974.

THE AGENCY also said 479 inmates were on death row at the end of 1975, although that number was cut in half last July by a Supreme Court decision setting down constitutional standards for levying the death penalty.

The death row population has climbed back to nearly 400 since July.

There was a sharp decline in the number of death sentences imposed in 1972 and 1973 because of a 1972 Supreme Court decision striking down capital punishment laws as applied throughout the country. But by the time of last July's ruling, 34 states had enacted new legislation and about half of the new laws appeared to meet the high court's latest constitutinal test.

According to the LEAA report, the ages of those awaiting execution at the end of 1975 ranged from 16 to 67 years.

THE REPORT SAID 91 per cent of the death row inmates had been convicted of murder.

Only eight were women, it said.

A majority never finished high school, and only 35 per cent were currently married when the Census Bureau took its survey for the LEAA. Nearly half had never been married, 17 per cent were divorced or separated and 2 per cent were widowed. The survey did not indicate how many widowers attained that status by killing their wives.

Blacks accounted for 53 per cent of those on death row, with 45 per cent white and 2 per cent other races.

"Blacks historically have made up a proportion of the death row population in excess of their representation in the national population," the LEAA said.

"ON A REGIONAL basis, the proportion of blacks . . . was highest in the North Central region (62 per cent) and lowest in the West (33 per cent). The proportion . . . was 57 per cent in the South and 50 per cent in the Northeast."

The LEAA said, however, that "when considered in relation to the proportion of blacks in the total population of each region, black overrepresentation was shown to be less pronounced in the South than in the other three regions."

The agency said the 12 Southern states accounted for 69 per cent of all the 1975 death sentences. North Carolina led with more than 100, but that state's law was among those struck down by the Supreme Court.

Illinois briefs

Expand aid or lose U.S. funds: Mann

The Illinois Dept. of Public Aid will have to expand its emergency assistance program or risk losing federal funding for Aid to Dependent Children, state Rep. Thomas E. Mann, D-Chicago, said Sunday. Mann said legal action is expected to force the department to expand its emergency aid program to cover all persons who were victims of crime or natural disasters and are eligible for ADC. Although funds were provided by the legislature for broader benefits to those on ADC in July, the Dept. of Public Aid never implemented the program.

Pay hikes before lawmakers

The Illinois legislature returns this week for the fall veto session's second round, but much of the Illinois General Assembly's attention will be on new legislation to construct a death penalty law and give pay hikes to legislators, judges and state officers. Legislators return to their desks at 2 p.m. Tuesday to continue considering how much of the money Gov. Daniel Walker cut from the fiscal 1977 budget should be restored. In the opening days of the session earlier this month, the Senate voted to restore money in the only veto called for a vote so far while both chambers individually overrode several non-fiscal vetoes. A veto must be overridden in both houses before a bill's language or money can be restored. But as it has in recent weeks, much of the talk this week probably will center on the death penalty and whether legislators should get pay hikes.

Holiday delays probe of theft: FBI

The Thanksgiving holiday delayed the investigation into the disappearance of some $55,000 from a sealed canvas sack delivered Saturday to a Chicago bank, an FBI spokesman said Sunday. The $55,000 in cash was ordered from the LaSalle National Bank by the Beverly Bank Friday and the sack containing the money was picked up and stored overnight by Purolator Inc., a bonded delivery and security company, authorities said. The theft was discovered about 10 a.m. Saturday when employes of the Beverly Bank broke the seal on the sack inside the bank's currency counting room. Instead of the money, they found newspapers cut to the size of dollars bills and tied in six bundles. FBI Special Agent Lamont Pugh said many of the persons the FBI wants to question had gone away for the holiday and would not be back until Monday.

Teachers OK antibias plan

The National Council of Teachers of English voted unanimously Saturday to open a three-year program to make teachers and students aware of the signs and damages of racism and sexism. By a closer vote — 102 to 96 — council members, at their annual business meeting in Chicago, passed a resolution to eliminate discrimination against homosexual men and women.

Filters hurt smokers more: study

health, the magazine suggested, because smokers may be taking more and deeper puffs per day "in an effort to get their nicotine fix."

"In general, smokers will be better off if they switch to low-tar filter brands and consume cigarets only at the same rate as they did the higher-tar brands," the magazine said.

IT SAID tests showed "leading filter cigaret brands produce more of the three poison gases than do leading nonfilter brands.

"For example, nonfilter Pall Mall King, the highest-tar brand tested, ranks only 13th on the hydrogen cyanide chart, well below such top-selling filter brands as Winston Filter King, Marlboro (Filter King and Box), Salem Filter King and L and M Filter King."

The Digest added: "The top 14 producers of toxic nitrogen dioxide . . . are top filter brands, while high-tar, nonfilter Camel, Pall Mall King and Lucky Strike rank far down the list."

The Digest's tests ranked Kool Filter 100's as having the highest combined total of the three gases. It was followed by L and M Filter King, Kool Filter King, Winston Filter King, Marlboro Filter 100s and Tareyton Filter King.

Lowest on the gas content scale was Carlton Filter 70, followed by Now Filter King, Kent Golden Lights Filter King and Merit Filter King.

These waiting periods were recorded by 10 Herald reporters who for three days rode taxicabs in the Northwest suburbs. Each reporter took three rides, one in the morning from a residence, one in the afternoon from a shopping area and one in the early evening from a public building.

Here's how local cab service stacks up

ilar experience. She waited 1 hour and 15 minutes one morning for an Arlington Heights City cab to take her a distance she usually walks in 15 minutes.

Not only are taxi rides sometimes inconvenient, but The Herald discovered they can also be dangerous and illegal.

A Prospect Cab Co. driver said he arrived 35 minutes after being dispatched because he was stopped by a Mount Prospect policeman and issued a speeding ticket.

Although every community in the area requires at least an annual safety inspection of each licensed taxi, Don Mozal, a driver for Ace Schaumburg Cab Co., said stronger inspection procedures are needed.

INSPECTION FORMS often are signed by attendants at approved service stations without a safety check being completed, he said.

"That's too easy. You can go into one particular inspection area down in Schaumburg and for $5 they'll just sign the sheet," Mozal said.

Three times, in Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village, taxi drivers violated village ordinances.

Martin Cab Co., which is not licensed in Arlington Heights, is prohibited from picking up customers there. Yet a reporter's request for a ride was honored.

AND TWICE in Elk Grove Village a reporter was picked up and dropped off within village limits by a T&D Cab Service taxi dispatched from Rosemont and not licensed in the village, which violated an ordinance. Owner Elisco blamed the illegal rides on shorthandedness.

Company owners interviewed agreed that improved service will be difficult without help, either from the state or communities.

"We want to stay in business for ourselves and aren't asking for government subsidies," Birks said. "But I work 15 hours a day and just break even. We try to provide the best service we can. People just have to understand that."

Cadet, 18, charged in slaying of family

A father, mother and two sons were shot to death early Sunday and a third son, home from a military academy in South Carolina for the Thanksgiving holidays, was charged with their murders, police said. Bergen County Prosecutor Joseph Woodcock said Harry DeLaroche Jr., 18, a cadet at the Citadel Military Academy, was charged in the deaths of his 44-year-old father, his mother, Mary Jane, 50, and two brothers, Eric, 12, and Ronald, 15.

Authorities said DeLaroche told them he found the four dead in the bedrooms of their home when he returned at 4 a.m. from a visit with a friend. But Woodcock later said, "The young man apparently came home at 3 a.m. and shot his parents and two brothers while they were sleeping.

Arson hinted in fire fatal to 6

A boarding house fire that claimed the lives of six elderly persons and injured 15 others in Philadelphia may have been set deliberately, Fire Comr. Joseph Rizzo said Sunday. Rizzo said five of the dead were trapped on the third floor of the burning three-story brick building.

A sixth victim was pronounced dead later. Rizzo said the blaze began late Saturday in the second loor stairwell of the Johnson Boarding Home. "This is a suspicious fire and is under investigation for possible arson," he said. Rizzo said as many as 22 elderly persons were in the building at the time of the blaze. Of the 15 injured, five remained hospitalized Sunday, one in guarded condition.

2 dead in Montana explosion

A retired rancher and a 17-year-old boy were missing and presumed dead Sunday in the remains of a building destroyed in the mysterious explosion of two 30,000-gallon propane tanks in Belt, Mont. Charles O. Pimperton, 72, and Timothy Ostlie were caught in the flames when a tank exploded outside the Garmers Union Cooperative Friday. Twnety persons were injured in the blasts, and acting Gov. Bill Christiansen declared a state of emergency in this farming town of 700. Authorities were uncertain whether fires and explosions were set off by a malfunction of the tanks or whether some cars of a passing freight train that derailed while carrying flammable material struck a tank.

'All of Soviet sub recovered'

The CIA, using the Howard Hughes-built Glomar Explorer with its submersible barge and remote-control "claw," salvaged all of a sunken Soviet submarine in 1975 — not just the front end of it as the spy agency initially reported, Time Magazine said Sunday. The Russian sub sank in 16,000 feet of water, 750 miles northwest of Hawaii, after an explosion in 1968.

POLICE LINED up early Sunday in front of River Plate stadium, Buenos Aires, where the soccer game between Argentina and Russia is seen as a trial run in security techniques for the 1978 World Cup games.

Gaullist Party defies Giscard

The leadership of the Gaullist Party adopted an aggressive political platform Sunday in defiance of French Pres. Valery Giscard d'Estaing's appeals for unity in the government coalition. The Gaullists announced a rally next Sunday to launch the movement under a new name and to elect a new president — almost certain to be former Premier Jacques Chirac. The announcement by the Gaullist party, now called Union for the Defense of the Republic, was in open defiance of Giscard's appeals for coalition factions to rally behind Giscard in his battle with leftist opposition and the deepening economic crisis.

Bomb found near Swedish A-plant

Police found and defused a 55-pound dynamite bomb Sunday outside a nuclear power plant in southwest Sweden. An anonymous letter to a newspaper warned "next time we will destroy the plant." A police official in Varberg said, "We found 25 kilos of dynamite sticks near a fence outside the Ringhals Nuclear Power Plant. The area has been cordoned off. The dynamite was disarmed and removed." Police began their search after the letter — it was signed "M" and accompanied by one small stick of dynamite — was received Saturday night by a newspaper in Gothenburg.

Australia devalues dollar 17.5%

Australia devalued its dollar by 17.5 per cent Sunday in a move that left it nearly at the same value as the U.S. dollar and had an immediate influence on neighboring New Zealand and Papua New Guinea. Treasurer Phillip Lynch announced in Canberra that the government was forced to devalue because of inflation resulting from wage increases higher than those in Australia's major trade-partner countries, and a persistnet loss of foreign-currency reserves. Prior to devaluation, the Australian dollar had a value of $1.195445 in American money. When devaluation takes effect today, one Australian dollar will be worth $1.0174 in American curreency — a gain for U. S. tourists and businessmen buying Australian products of 18 cents on the dollar.

Amy to attend public school

by DON PHILLIPS

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter and his wife announced Sunday that their 9-year-old daughter Amy will attend an integrated public school about six blocks from the White House, the frist child of a president ever to do so.

In a statement read by Press Sec. Jody Powell, the Carters said Amy will enroll in the Thaddeus Stevens School after the inauguration in January. The school, opened in 1868, was built for the children of freed slaves and is the oldest in the city.

The last White House child to attend a Washington public school was President Theodore Roosevelt's son, Quentin. In those days, schools in the District of Columbia were legally segregated.

Amy will be in the fourth grade.

ROSALYNN CARTER said her visit to Thaddeus Stevens during a trip to Washington last week left her "very pleased with the quality of the school, the attitude of the staff and teachers and the friendliness of the students."

Washington has the highest percentage of blacks in its school system — 95 per cent — of any major city in the United States. About 60 per cent of the 215 students at Thaddeus Stevens are black, while 30 per cent are from Asian and Hispanic nations and 10 per cent are white.

Powell said Mrs. Carter, who had planned to make the announcement personally, was suffering from a slight inflammation of her eyes because of "some kind of allergy reaction." He said she had been given eye drops by a Navy medical corpsman and was "feeling better."

CARTER SAID during his campaign that he would send Amy to a public school in Washington if he were elected President and if the Secret Service had no major security objections.

Mrs. Carter said she understood that Stevens is the school that Amy would be assigned to by school officials in Washington. It is five and one-half blocks from the White House and was named for Thaddeus Stevens, a thundering anti-slavery congressman from Pennsylvania.

"No special security problems have been found to exist," Mrs. Carter said.

EARLIER SUNDAY, in his first public appearance since returning from Washington Tuesday, Carter took members of his family and a visiting televison personality to worship with the townspeople at the Plains Baptist Church.

The President-elect sat in his family's traditional pew accompanied by Amy, his mother Lillian and Barbara Walters of ABC-TV, who was in Plains to interview him. Rosalynn Carter did not attend because of her allergy condition.

Unlike other recent Sundays, there was no commotion this week at the little white clapboard church over a black candidate for membership.

The Rev. Clennon King of nearby Albany, Ga., who stirred worldwide controversy with his repeated attempts to join the all-white church and finally was allowed last week to apply for membershp, did. not appear for either the men's bible class or the worship service.

Rookie learning cop's job, knows it's right for him

by JERRY THOMAS

As the squad car cruised along the subdivision street, the young policeman's eyes scanned every home.

"Sergeant," he said, "that garage door's open."

Someday, maybe, Patrolman Patrick Kelhi will spot an open door and catch a burglar in the act. But not today.

"Yeah, I saw that," the sergeant replied. "I know that guy. This is his day off, so he's at home working on his car.

KELHI NODDED. It was another tidbit of information to add to his mental file on Rolling Meadows.

As one of the newest and, at 21, the yongest member of the force, Kelhi's been picking up a lot of information like that. He's teamed up with Sgt. Timothy Lonergan, a 13-year veteran, while he learns the job and the city.

I'm also learning things aout myself," he says. "I didn't think that my first days on the street would mean butterflies in my stomach. I also found out there are various ways of approaching a situation and talking to different people.

"It's difficult to be authoritative with young people," he explains. "You have to come on as someone they can talk to and still respect. On the other hand, older people offer another problem, and I've got to learn how to cope with that also."

KELHI WAS BORN in New York, grew up in Arlington Heights and enlisted in the Marines as soon as he was old enough. In three years he rose to the rank of sergeant but then changed his mind about a military career.

"It was time to decide if I was going to reenlist for another three years," he recalls. "I knew I wanted out.

"In the beginning in the corps, I learned that you form and shape your life by what you do, and a man has to live his job 24-hours-a-day to be good at it.

"I knew the corps wasn't for me any more. There was a loss of pride and a loss of discipline, and I knew something was wrong and got out. I left the service and started looking. I found the right thing, although it took a year. I've done other things, but this is the only one that, at the end of the day, gives me the feeling that I've done something."

"Sometimes I bump into friends I haven't seen in four or five years, and they see the uniform, and I tell them, yeah, I'm a policeman, and their jaws drop.

"They all ask why," he says. "I'm still not sure I want to go into elaborate testimonials about why I am a policeman. It's right, that's one thing I know for sure."

SURE, HE'S HEARD all the stories about a policemen's life.

"I know some say marriages don't last because of the kind of life a policeman leads, on call at all times, but that's not necessarily true," Kelhi, a bachelor, says.

"It's always what you make of life," he adds. "I believe that the only kind of job is one that you can be totally commited to."

The squad car turned and cruised into the business district. The young patrolman's eyes scanned every storefront.

Residents need flu shot chance

The isolation of a suspected case of swine flu in Concordia, Mo., last week started a lot of people thinking about swine flu vaccinations again.

Because of this renewed interest, the Cook County public health department should schedule a make-up vaccination clinic in the Northwest suburbs for persons who missed getting a shot the first time around.

Many people who earlier decided not to get a shot are changing their minds. The Missouri case suggests that swine flu is a reality. Some who took a wait-and-see attitude now know that their friends and neighbors who were vaccinated survived the possible side effects.

Others missed the local vaccinations because they were out of town, ill or had other conflicts which prevented them from getting to a clinic.

All of this combined to create new demands for swine flu shots. That should make public health officials who support the program happy.

However, the shots are no longer being given locally. Area residents must now go to Chicago for a flu shot.

It would be a service, not just a convenience, for the county to arrange a "mop-up clinic" in the Northwest suburbs.

Area hosptials and family doctors do not have the swine flu vaccine. Only the county health department can initiate a make-up clinic.

The jet injector guns used for the mass immunizations belong to the state public health department and are probably not immediately available for use in Cook County. But a special effort should be made by the county to find jet guns for an additional clinic. If necessary, the vaccine could be administered by syringe and needle as it was to senior citizens and the chronically ill.

North and Northwest suburban Cook County residents who have not yet gotten a swine flu shot deserve a second chance. If the illness is as dangerous as publicity indicates, the benefit from a make-up clinic will vastly outweigh any inconvenience to public health officials.

Prison for price-fixing

Officials of the U.S. Justice Department's antitrust division have announced they are going to ask for prison sentences for corporate executives convicted of price fixing.

That announcement, assuming it is followed up by firm action by federal judges, will go far toward ensuring this "white collar crime" is treated as the serious offense that it it is, not as a "gentleman's crime."

In the past, those found guilty of price fixing have been penalized through fines against their corporations. Assistant Atty. Gen. Donald Baker recently said that while bank embezzlers were sentenced to an average of 22 months in prison and tax evaders got an average of 15 months, 75 persons convicted of breaking anti-trust laws received a total of 75 days in jail.

Baker said he believes sending executives to prison for price fixing violations will put that crime in the same class with embezzlement and stock fraud, both business crimes which are treated seriously.

The prison sentence is possible under a 1974 law which increases the penalties for price fixing to a maximum 18 month prison sentence and $1 million fine.

Since consumers are the ultimate victims of price fixing conspiracies, it is important that the court system treat them seriously. The Justice Department decision to ask for prison sentences for those convicted is an important step.

It won't restore confidence in Minnesota

An example of 'politics as usual'

by TOM TIEDE

A Commentary

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — No sooner had the Democrats seized the White House with promises of restoring confidence in the political system than one of their own was blackening that system anew.

Wendell Anderson, governor of Minnesota, is the culprit. Hisses and fie on him. Faced with the duty of naming a Senate replacement for Walter Mondale, who is stepping up to lower things, Anderson decided there was only one man in the state with enough competence and enough stature to replace Mondale: Wendell Anderson.

Ergo the governor has conceived an unhappy plan to further his own interests. He will resign his present office, allowing Lt. Gov. Rudy Perpich to take over. Perpich will then select Anderson — who, after all, will be out of work and essentially a wasted resource — to be the new junior senator from the land of 10,000 lakes.

ANDERSON IS aware there will be criticism of his action. Already a poll has been conducted indicating that 55 per cent of the Minnesotanas questioned do not want the governor to elect himself to the Senate.But since the polls have no authority, and since politics is often the art of preventing people from engaging in what is their own businesiness, Anderson insists all skepticism will be disregarded.

"I'm sure some will react negatively," the governor says, "but I hope that my work in the Senate will earn their support and justify my election to a full term in 1978." Displaying no shame at all, Anderson is already campaigning for a Senate career, and what with the incumbent's advantage he is bestowing on himself he'll likely get it.

That the Minnesotan has yearned for a national pulpit has been apparent for years. A one-time Olympic hockey player and attorney, he has been in political office for 1 of his 43 years, and he's been touted as a comer since early this decade. Curly haired, blue eyed, moderate in all things including philosophy, he is a prodigy of Hubert Humphrey and a ripening favorite of his mighty party.

HE IS A BIT too Democratic, perhaps. At the past party convention, as chairman of the platform committee, Anderson fought hard for a rule — a loyalty oath, really — which would force all candidates to promise allegiance to the eventual nominee. Thus he wanted Jimmy Carter and company to swear fidelity even if George Wallace was the pick. This he argued was for the good of the party, hence the Republic.

But extremism in defense of Democratic unity isn't a vice, not to those who can add registration figures. And it is this sort of devotion which has led Democrats to believe Anderson is too big for a mere gubernatorial chair. With his good looks and fortuitous attitude, they say, he could be president some day. But not by staying in Minnesota; governors have a way of working themselves into obscurity.

In the end the issue is power, and its proper use. No other person in Minnesota has the power to name himself senator, one would hope no other would do so even if he did. Power is a trust. Power is a duty. And power abused is seldom directed to any good end and or purpose.

But Anderson is apparently determined. It is possible that Lt. Gov. Perpich could still change his mind about his part in the murky collaboration, and yet it's not likely. Despite Democratic campaign promises, honor still seems something of the remote political future.

It's a good time for giving thanks

I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank all of the men and women who volunteered their time to help with the Swine Flu Clinic at St. Marcelline's Church on Nov. 10 and 12. The task of securing the amount of volunteers necessary seemed monumental. However, because of all the people who signed up, the clinic was very productive. Those who came for the vaccine were taken care of quickly and efficiently. Your cooperation was greatly appreciated.

Strong Chinese economy offers benefits to U.S.

by RAY CROMLEY

A Commentary

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There are hints in the news which indicate that China under Chairman Hua Kuo-feng may be on the verge of opening up slightly to the outside world.

Reports suggest Peking may soon take on once more the large-scale import of foreign technology, abandoned some time back because of fears the practice might lead to dangerous dependence on foreigners. The Chinese were burned, it will be recalled, by their experience with the Russians. Moscow, after moving in technicians and equipment heavily for a few years, withdrew abruptly when Peking refused to knuckle under to Moscow's demand for complete alignment of Chinese foreign policy with the Soviet.

The rapid withdrawal of the Russian personnel and equipment did severe damage to the Chinese economy, which took years to recover.

RENEWED INTEREST in importing technology and equipment most certainly will focus on non-Communist nations. Note here that most of the outstanding scientific leaders of China are basically oriented toward the West — and particularly toward the United States, Great Britain, Japan and West Germany. A goodly share of the top men have their degrees from these countries. Some have had influential posts in the West before returning to China.

Secondly, there has been in the upper echelons of China's political hierarchy a belief in the benefits of American industrial production methods. This conviction was shared by Chairman Mao Tse-tung in his Yenan days.

In the stormy years since Yenan, there has been pressure to open Chinese industry to Western technology and equipment. But political differences and the experience with Russia kept the door closed. These fears may be easing as far as the West is concerned.

WHAT WILL THIS move, if it eventuates, mean to the United States?

American technology and equipment sold to China, and American know-how in the form of training, would most certainly strengthen a totalitarian country whose aims are not parallel with our own in much of the world, the Far East in particular.

The detriment to the defense of the United States would not by any means be as serious as our selling technology and equipment to Russia, whose military growth in the next decade could well threaten the security of the United States and the free world.

There is however, evidence, tenuous though it may be, that China will continue to be a rival of, and a balance against, the Soviet Union for a goodly period of time to come. There are national rivalries and deep sore points which now and in the foreseeable future may well bar any real conciliation between the two nations. For one, China cannot be comfortable with a strong military power next door working year in and year out to expand its military-political influence across China's southern and northeastern borders — a technique which Peking calls encirclement.

If China should, in fact, continue to be a counter balance to Russia, it is to the benefit of the United States, with proper precautions, to strengthen the Chinese economy within limits, with special emphasis on aid improving the lot of the Chinese people as distinct from the Peking military establishment.

A note of warning: Closer economic relations with China should not and must not lead us to default on our relationship with Taiwan.

Work-study program 'excellent'

by LEA TONKIN

When Beth Johnson applied for a job at the Bank of Palatine, she was aiming for a regular paycheck and high school credits.

As a result of her participation in the Palatine High School work-study program during her senior year, 18-year-old Beth has landed a full-time job as a bookkeeper and teller at the bank. Successful work-study programs for industrial, office and other careers benefit an increasing number of students as well as the business community, notes high school career counselor James Sindelar.

Attractive pay levels and the opportunity to learn the basics of bookkeeping while drawing a paycheck appealed to Beth. Experienced bank employes have been willing to shar their knowledge of posting, balancing and other skills needed on the job, she said.

BANK PRESIDENT Winn Davidson said he became interested in the Palatine High School work-study programs when he listened to a talk by Sindelar at a Palatine Chamber of Commerce meeting. Results are "'excellent," he said. In addition to Beth's work at the bank, a second high school student has signed up to learn banking skills.

"Our primary concern is to get someone who can get a job done and do it properly," Davidson said. The work-study program, in which a student works part-time and attends classes during part of the day, "gives both sides a chance to evaluate each other" before a permanent job is approved, Davidson said.

Davidson believes banking industry has changed its image from the old "bookkeeper with green eyeshades" stereotype. Opportunities for advancement and pay have improved during the past several years, he said, adding that increasing numbers of women are moving up in the ranks.

"It's a field where the demand for experienced people exceeds supply," Davidson said. Sindelar, the Palatine High School career counselor, agrees.

THERE'S ALSO AN "unbelievable" demand for employes in the clerical professions, Sindelar said. He said the high school tailors its work-study programs to current employment opportunities and student interests.

"Work programs are designed so that students have related classes here at school," Sindelar said. "A workstudy coordinator works with them on employment outside the school."

Work-study programs are a boon to students, parents and employers, Sindelar said. "And statistics show a high percentage of the students go on for higher education."

High School Dist. 211 cooperative education vocational programs include office, industrial, and distributive education and work experience programs.

Male-female salary gap doubles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Gap between wages earned by men and women has nearly doubled in the past 20 years, partly because so many females have gone to work for the first time, a government report said Sunday.

Women who held full-time jobs in 1974 earned only 57 cents for every dollar earned by men, according to the report issued by the Women's Bureau of the Labor Dept. Employment Standards Administration.

Much of the earning gap can be explained only by "a maximum measure of discrimination," even after such factors such as women having less job experience, working less overtime or having different educational backgrounds have been considered, the report said.

IT TOOK THOSE women nearly nine days of work to gross the same income earned by men in five days, the bureau said.

While women have made employment gains in recent years, the report said, men nearly doubled the gap between their salaries and those earned by females between 1955 and 1974.

The bureau said that in "constant dollars," which take inflation into account, working men averaged earning $1,911 more than working women in 1955. It said men stretched that advantage to $3,433 in 1974 — 79 per cent difference.

A major factor contributing to the widening gap was a predominance of women in lower status occupations of a traditional nature which provide limited opportunity for advancement, the report said.

THE REPORT SAID women are nearly four times as likely as men to earn between $3,000 and $4,990 a year, and three times as likely to be in the $5,000 to $6,999 pay bracket.

"Despite the fact that women were 32 per cent of all year-round full-time earners in 1974, they accounted for 63 per cent of workers earning between $3,000 and $4,999," it said.

"They made up 58 per cent of those earning $5,000 to $6,999 . . . (but) accounted for only 5 per cent of all year-round, full-time workers earning $15,000 and over."

Publishing contract may have traps

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

What's the price of an ego trip these days?

One reader stopped just short of paying $5,000 for a ticket to have his book published. In all likelihood it would have been a one-way ticket as far as his money was concerned: out, with no return.

He had answered one of those ads by a publisher "seeking authors," the mainstay kind of pitch by the so-called subsidy publishers, or vanity press.

HE WAS PRESENTED with a contract for his signature. If he signed it, he'd be obliged to pay them $5,000. He sent me the contract, before signing it, for review and comments.

Aside from the possible merits (or lack thereof) of the manuscript itself, the contract contains traps that will break the heart and the bankroll of the gullible.

While the contract makes a number of references to 3,500 copies of the book, the only commitment specified in the contract is for 150 copies: 100 "free" to the author and 50 to be mailed to reviewers.

One of the references to the 3,500 copies is contained in the royalty clause, which states that the author will receive a royalty of $2.38 per copy (40 per cent of the $5.95 retail price) for the first 3,500 copies that are sold and paid for. Some quick arithmetic would indicate that the sale of 3,500 copies would bring the author a quick profit of $3,330. A nice allure indeed.

Trap No. 1: Evsn if 3,500 copies were printed and distributed to bookstores, it's typical that at least 20 per cent to 30 per cent of thse will be returned unsold and unapdi for by the retailers.

Trap. No. 2: A later clause states that the royalty rate will be cut in half on all sales made at a discount (to the retailer) of more than 45 per cent. The fact is that the retailer's discount tends to be closer to an average of 47 per cent in normal transactions. Thus it's likely that the average royalty on this contract would be $1.19, and not $2.38. If, then, 3,500 copies were printed and sold, less the returns, the author would still be out of pocket more than $1,000.

Learning in new language

by JOHN N. FRANK

"Boy . . . boat . . . black . . ."

Six-year-old Kyung, son of Korean immigrants, is learning to speak English. He is one of more than 200 students throughout the Northwest suburbs who come from homes where little or no English is spoken.

Kyung's parents have decided to make America their home and, like other immigrants, need help adjusting to a new culture, said Myong Schiestel, Kyung's Korean tutor at Willow Bend School, 4700 Barker Ave., Rolling Meadows.

MRS. SCHIESTEL HELPS the children's parents, who often speak little or no English themselves, by translating during parent-teacher conferences and explaining report cards, field trips and milk money, but her major job is to help children like Kyung learn English and develop an understanding of American culture.

"We hope to educate the child while he's learning English," said Charles Erickson, director of the Northwest Education ooperative's multicultural program. The program was begun this year to place children in schools which have teachers speaking their language. A child who speaks Polish, for example, would attend a district that had a Polish program of at least 20 students regardless of whether that is the child's home district.

"Once they feel good about themselves, once their culture is accepted and their language is accepted they can start to learn," said Virginia Tolk, chairwoman of Palatine Township Dist. 15's bilingual program.

Before such programs existed, children were expected to learn English by "total immersion," Erickson said, picking up English words by listening to the teacher and classmates.

"Either you had a zealous classroom teacher who put out for that child to the neglect of the others, or the kid sat there like a lump," he said.

ERICKSON SAID HE has placed children of a German chef, a Greek restaurant owner, a German printer and a Korean stationed in the United States by his country's Counsel General's office.

Kyung is one of 11 Korean children at Willow Bend, Mrs. Schiestel said. Ranging in age from five to 11, they have had no previous English training.

"It would be easier for them to learn if they played with American children, but not many do," she said. The main reason is shyness.

"First graders and kindergartners don't care, they just speak up, but from about third grade on they hold back," she said.

FORMATS USED RANGE from half-days of instruction in academic subjects given in a child's primary language, to a resource room where students receive special English tutoring each day.

Besides teaching the children how to communicate in English, the program attempts to introduce them to aspects of life in the United States that may be completely fortign to them.

In Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, Link School Principal Maynard Thomas said children in the program there have visited a local Dominick's Food Store where they were shown how a supermarket operates. The group has also visited other community establishments, Thomas said.

There are still a few kinks to work out, and the rule seems to be to expect the unexpected. Thomas said one little girl got so caught up in the Thanksgiving feast at Link that she gobbled down her portion of turkey before she realized that turkey is a fowl and eating fowl is against her religion.

MS. TOLK SAID Dist. 15 is also working on explanation of American holidays and customs, sometimes with humorous results.

"One little girl raised her hand and said, 'I understand what St. Patrick's Day is but what I don't understand is why?' " she said.

Such are the questions multicultural programs hope to answer.

Model Soviet supersonic sells for $2 from Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Less than three months ago the MIG25 Foxbat jet was one of the Soviet Union's most valuable defense secrets.

In January, detailed replicas of the supersonic fighter-reconnaissance plane will be on sale in the West for $2 each.

A Russian air force pilot who flew one of the swept-wing, twin-engine jets to Japan helped disclose the plane's secrets — consideed priceless by Western intelligence sources — in return for political asylum in the United States.

Now a model-making firm in central Japan has announced it will sell plastic replicas of the Foxbat.

Hasegawa Seisakusho Co. said Sunday its branch offices in Los Angeles and London already have received orders from foreign buyers for the 12-inch-long models, complete with the Red Star insignia, and will put 200,000 planes on the market in January.

The MIG was seen on Japanese television after Soviet Air Force Lt. Viktor Belenko landed it at Hakodate airport 500 miles north of Tokyo Sept. 6.

Hasegawa Seisakusho said its technical experts reproduced the jet after careful study of videotapes and newspaper photographs in Japan and data from American aviation journals.

Japanese and American military experts dismantled the jet, which is capable of flying at more than three times the speed of sounds, before Japan crated the plane and shipped it back to the Soviet Union earlier this month.

Richardson in Turkey to assist relief efforts

VAN, Turkey (UPI — The government imposed a state of mobilization in Van province Sunday, seizing private vehicles and drafting citizens for efforts to shelter earthquake survivors from a blizzard that threatened to increase the disaster's death toll, already beyond 3,000.

Commerce Sec. Elliot L. Richardson, meanwhile, arrived in Ankara to supervise American relief efforts for victims in eastern Turkey. Richardson had been in Yugoslavia on a six-nation tour when he received a midnight call from the White House ordering him to the Turkish capital.

Four days after the quake shook the earth with a force that registered 7.6 on the open-ended Richter scale, a blizzard hit the disaster zone where 30,000 homeless people camped under open skies. Officials said they feared the frigid gales and driving snow would swell the casualty lists.

THE COMPLETE death toll is unknown. Premier Suleyman Demirel said Saturday there were 3,024 dead. The deputy governor of Van province, however, earlier put the figure at over 4,000, and local sources said the final figure might exceed 6,000.

The quake Wednesday, the strongest in Turkey in 37 years, left four towns and 130 villages ruined and 1,200 people seriously injured.

International aid Sunday poured into Van from the United States, West Germany and many other countries, including Greece, Turkey's rival on Cyprus.

Tremors hit Pakistan

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI) — Three mild earth tremors hit the twin cities of Rawalpindi and Islamabad early Sunday, sending some residents scurrying into the streets. No casualties or damage were reported.

Police said the tremors rattled windows and doors in the two cities before dawn.

Lorraine La Susa: she's back in school to be a professional

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Super-lady . . . Mrs. L. Wonder-woman . . . Second-mama . . . Are these CB radio handles? Not on your life. Lorraine La Susa, mother of five, former Palatine community volunteer and club worker — and great and good friend to neighborhood teens — attracts such superlative and affectionate labels.

"Mrs. L" founder of The Joint, which was a Palatine teen center from 1968 to 1972, now runs her Barrington Park open-door friendly home, cares for a good-size family, works part-time for a women's apparel shop, and pursues a college degree.

Right now she is putting together a portfolio of "life's experiences" for a competency evaluation at School of New Learning, a continuing education degree-program at DePaul University.

"I must use proven, documented experiences that show I am competent in those areas," Mrs. La Susa explaines.

LORRAINE EXPECTS she'll be awarded a psychology degree in about a year if her portfolio is accepted. She then will study for a master's in family counseling.

"I know I can work with people. Now I want to do it professionally," the former volunteer said.

Mrs. La Susa ventured into community activities when she, two children and husband, Sam, an attorney, moved to "the country" 17 years ago.

"I spent summers in the country when I was a child, and wanted our children to have the same privilege," Lorraine explained.

However, country living didn't match those ideal summer vacations Lorraine remembered.

She had three more children and became restless and lonely.

FIRST SHE joined a garden club in Barrington, and at a friend's suggestion, became a member in Palatine Junior Woman's Club. She also volunteered time to Clearbrook and Countryside Centers, and spearheaded Palatine Community Council a composite community group.

And when automobile accidents and other pressing teen problems spurred her to action, "Mrs. L" organized a teen center for Palatine youth.

The youngsters operated The Joint with help from an adult advisory board. "With cooperation and generosity from the community, the kids worked to finance their own building, raising $60,000 to purchase property. But the kids grew up and moved out, adults lost interest, and we eventually donated proceeds from property sale to Countryside Y," Lorraine said.

Her young friends still visit at holiday time, and Mrs. L values the long-time association. In fact, they encouraged her to go back to school.

"THE KIDS suggested I attend a class in child psychology at Harper College with them when I was pregnant with Jenene," she said. (Jenene was born asthmatic five years ago. Concerned for her health and care, Mrs. La Susa since has cut back on most community work. She is now a member of Foundation Board, Northwest Community Hospital.)

It was a guidance counselor friend at Harper who pointed Lorraine to School of New Learning. Lorraine felt stagnated when she dropped community involvement, but was reluctant and scared to go back to school. For a while she tried sports, involving her whole family. But now — with family approval — Mrs. La Susa has made her commitment for that college degree.

She is reaping more than satisfaction for years working to serve her family and community. School of New Learning will evaluate all those contributions and work skills (she's worked since age 14, earned her own college expenses of more than two years before she married) for college credit.

Lorraine La Susa, homemaker and volunteer, now is following her own philosophy: "Do your own thing." She'll still be helping people . . . professionally.

LORRAINE LA SUSA'S volunteer work will be evaluated toward a degree in psychology at DePaul University's School of New Learning. Her portfolio of "life experiences" will include documents of her years with Palatine Junior Woman's Club where she headed every committee until she became president; her volunteer work at Clearbrook and Countryside Centers, and the teen center she organized in Palatine. When ill health of her youngest child forced her to cut back on her community work, she felt stagnated, but now, with the approval of her family she is back at school, reaping more than satisfaction for her years of serving her family and community.

Parental Stress Service

An ear for frazzled moms, dads

The trigger could be as simple as a child's picky eating habits after a trying day or as complex as a deep-seated history of abuse in the father's family. The parents come from the ghettos of the south side and the mansions of the north shore, and the symptoms of their anger run the gamut from verbal epithets to brutal beatings.

Parental Stress Service is well aware of the causes and symptoms of child abuse, and the self-help organization is out to stem both by helping parents cope with negative emotions toward their children.

THE CHICAGO-BASED service was organized two years ago, and has recently expanded to include the northwest suburbs. Its program, staffed by 95 volunteers and eight paid administrators, is four-fold: a 24-hour hotline; an outreach program providing volunteers to counsel a distressed parent in an emergency; referrals to other agencies; and weekly meetings along the lines of Alcoholics Anonymous.

According to Debbie Doherty, coordinator in charge of the western and northwest suburbs, 90 per cent of abusive parents don't consciously intend to harm their children. The causes for the abuse — or neglect — are usually linked to a childhood which included abuse, a situational difficulty like a divorce or financial obligation, or a housewife's loneliness and isolation.

"Most of our callers really want to be good parents, but their emotions just get out of control," said Ms. Doherty. "So many parents feel they have to love their kids 24 hours a day . . . they store up their anger and it comes out against the child."

"THE KEY to avoiding abuse is letting your feelings show. It helps to let a child know you're angry with him, but it has to be done in acceptable ways," she continued.

Most of the parents who call for help are women who feel isolated and trapped in the home, said Ms. Doherty. With few friends, no outlets, and a husband who is often out of town or out of the picture entirely, a mother with young children can become a prime candidate for Parental Stress.

The need for a home visit after a child has been injured is rare, said Ms. Doherty, but paired volunteers will accompany the parents and child to the hospital if needed. Parental Stress is a non-reporting agency and guarantees complete confidentiality, but volunteers warn the parents that the hospital or physician will report the injury, she added.

IN MOST CASES, the problem is as familiar as a five-year-old's daily reluctance to get ready for his classes at the local Y. When the exasperated mother places a call to Parental Stress, volunteers (most of whom have their own children and attend monthly training seminars) respond by emphasizing the parent's feelings and exploring options.

If professional advice is required, volunteers keep a list of area services for referrals. And for mutual support and discussion of parenting problems, the weekly Parents Anonymous meetings team up to ten parents with a trained coordinator, Ms. Doherty said.

Despite the varied causes for child abuse, volunteers do recognize some patterns. Ms. Doherty reported the peak times for calls are in the winter months (more inside activities), dinnertime, children's bedtime, and just after the youngsters leave for school in the morning.

VERY FEW callers are men; primarily because "there's still a stigma about not being 'strong' . . . many men don't see a problem because they are supposed to act like the boss," said Doherty.

But whatever their sex, parents do call — at the rate of between 250 and 300 a month, she reported. And whether the response is a trip to the hosiptal or advice of a heart-to-heart talk and a few aspirin, Parental Stress is working to keep child abuse out of the headlines.

Ribbon belts simple gifts to make

Sew simple

by Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I would like to learn to make the narrow, striped grosgrain ribbon belts that are found on sportswear today. This way, they could be changed according to desired colors. Also, I thought they would make nifty belts for Christmas gifts. Incidentally, I have also found them on men's slacks and they look great. Mrs. Carole R.

Dear Carole:

These belts are fairly simple to make, however, the leather-type backing may be difficult to find. I shall give you instructions that won't require the backing; instead, use two lengths of your ribbon.

The belts will need some stiffening and there are two that I will recommend. First, you can cut the non-roll belting just slightly smaller than the width of the belt, insert it between the two layers of ribbon, pin in place and machine stitch the ribbon together on each side, very close to the edges.

If you can't find the belting, cut press-on interfacing slightly narrower than the ribbon and press it to the back of each length of ribbon, then proceed as above by pinning the ribbons together and machine stitching close to the edges. Finish the one end with the buckle, the other with a point.

If you aren't sure of the waist measurement, don't punch in the eyelets for the belt slide, instead, remove the prong of the buckle and apply a strip of Velcro to the belt to hold in place.

These marvelous striped ribbons come in several widths for belts, from one-half inch to two inches and are usually washable.

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I'm an avid reader of your wonderful "Sew Simple" column and although I don't consider myself a beginner, I still have lots to learn. There is one thing that leaves me literally "stricken" when I open up the pattern instructions, that is the part about interfacings. Patterns differ so much in the techniques and are very vague about the type of interfacing that should be used. Often the clerks in the stores aren't much help either. Can you give us a guideline? Nancy T.

Dear Nancy:

The big problem concerning interfacing and the information given on patterns is that they can only give you a general idea since they really have no idea about the fabric you have purchased; they can only help you with the actual fabric they have used for the sample garment.

There are many alternatives about interfacings: the woven versus the unwoven, the press-on versus the non-press on, etc. It all depends on the weight and type of your fabric and the type of pattern. It all boils down to your own good judgment.

We have had extremely good luck with Pellon's "Dot" press-on interfacing. It is very light weight, only bonds the fabric with tiny pin dots — preventing too much stiffness — and it is so flexible that it has worked with fine matte jerseys as well as heavier fabrics. I hardly think you could make a mistake using this type of interfacing for most garments excluding suits and coats where you would need a heavier type interfacing.

You might have to experiment with each and every garment by taking a small scrap of fabric and applying several different types of interfacing, finding just the right one for that garment.

In the meantime, try to find a fabric resource where you can get expert advice on this matter; it can often spell the difference between success and failure. If we fail too often, it does something to our enthusiasm for sewing and we certainly don't need those kind of handicaps.

The winner of today's set of gold blazer buttons: Mrs. William Rieder, 4333 Herrick Lane, Madison, Wis. 53711. Here's her winning tip:

"Being a nurse, I carry two or three ball point pens in my uniform pocket. The pockets are soon stained with ink. Using a soft, clear plastic, I line the pocket and at least one half the area under the pocket on the garment (from the bottom of the pocket up) and then re-attach it. This doesn't show from the outside of the pocket and saves the garment for extra wearings."

Why not skip the Christmas Shopping crowds and make your own gifts this year? The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Isometric exercises usually not harmful

After reading your column about isometric exercises and what they can actually do to the blood pressure I became very concerned. I do not do isometric exercises, but whenever I think of it I tense my stomach muscles and keep them tight in order to have a flat stomach.

Is this a practice that I should avoid? I am a middleaged woman and I do exercise. I've never been troubled with high blood pressure and I don't want it to happen to me now.

Isometric contractions, including hand-shaking or squeezing and voluntary contractions, can cause a transitory rise of the blood pressure. They will not cause a normal person to develop high blood pressure though. The danger is for the person who already has excessively high blood pressure.

Many life situations increase the blood pressure temporarily. A good example is running. As a person exerts himself, the heart must pump more blood. With this increase the blood pressure rises. This is normal and after exercise the blood pressure returns to normal. Such exercise actually helps to lower blood pressure in many normal people after the period of exercise is over.

To give you more information on isometric exercises and blood pressure I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-10, Exercise, Posture, Strength. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Keep up your exercise. It will help you keep strong abdominal muscles and help prevent back problems as well as keep you nicer looking.

I have a problem that has been bothering me for some time and it really worries me. I am female and 14 years old. I started menstruating a year ago. I had read that menstrual cycles can sometimes be irregular, such as skipping a month or two, so I was not going to be worried or surprised if mine did. Well, mine didn't. I was very regular.

After about six months, one month I didn't have my period. It didn't come the next month and now it is six months — half a year — since my last period.

Around that time I changed my eating habits and went on a mild diet. I started eating the right amount of everything; plenty of vegetables, fresh fruit and the right amounts of protein, milk, cereal, bread and bulk products. I do not eat any heavy, rich, sweet desserts as I used to all the time. I lost five pounds.

Isn't six months without menstruating very abnormal? Can it be normal at all? I am much too shy to talk to my mother or anyone about it or to see a doctor either. What should I do? This is really worrying me.

You should have stuck with your original resolution not to worry if your periods were irregular.

No, it is not unusual to have relatively long time spans without menstruation at your age. Young girls usually start having periods between 10 and 16 years of age. The fact that you had regular periods suggests that you are perfectly normal.

Obesity and crash diets are both factors in upsetting the delicate hormone balance that controls menstruation. You are on the right course, eating a sound, sensible diet. Nature will likely take care of the rest of the development for you. If you do not resume menstruation by age 16 then you should see a doctor about it.

Reader recommends markings on foil ends

Dear Dorothy: It's automatic with me to wrap steaks and roasts for the freezer in heavy aluminum foil. Periodically, though, I come up frustrated because just when I'm doing fine, the roll runs out. Wouldn't it be of help if the foil had inch markings on the last 12 inches of the roll? — Judith Gordon

It's a great idea. All of us have had the same experience. Now let's hope some smart character in the aluminum foil business reads this and gets moving on it.

Dear Dorothy: For people who live alone, it takes quite a while to use up a loaf of bread. I've learned how to keep such a loaf from drying out. (1) Wet the top "heel" with tap water and keep it and the first piece under it in place as you use the slices under them. (2) After taking out the slices you need each time, carefully fold the wrapper back in place and secure with a rubber band or two. (3) Always put the unused bread in the refrigerator until you need more. This keeps the bread soft, moist and fresh all the way. — Frank Ingram

Dear Dorothy: Is there any simple way to keep the tiles in the bathroom clean and free of black mildew? — Marcia Crane

Keeping it free of moisture does the trick. Mildew needs dampness and darkness to grow. The best way to get it off is to use a toothbrush and a solution of three tablespoons bleach to a quart of warm water. Let it stand for a few minutes, then rinse off.

Dear Dorothy: What can one do when the gravy gets lumpy? I'm embarrassed to serve it this way. — Carole Pyle

Whipping it with one of those kitchen whisks will take care of it. If you don't have a whisk, try a few turns with an egg beater.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Oakton tackles topics: organization, alcoholism

Household shortcuts, financial planning tips and time management skills will be shared with everyone attending "Getting Yourself Organized," a one-day workshop planned for Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Sponsored by the Oakton Community College's Women's Program, this program on organizing priorities and allocating time can make the upcoming holiday season more enjoyable for participants who learn to plan their work efficiently.

The workshop will be held in St. Luke's Lutheran Church, 205 N. Prospect, Park Ridge. Cost is $8 which includes dessert and refreshments; participants will bring a sack lunch. Child care is available for children over 2 years old at $3.50 per child.

Because enrollment is limited, anyone interested in "Getting Yourself Organized," should reserve a place by calling Pat Handzel, Oakton's Director of Non-Traditional Student Programs, at 967-5120, ext. 350.

A TWO-PART program on "Alcoholism in the Family" will be presented this Wednesday and Wednesday, Dec. 9, by the Women Returning to School Organization at Oakton Community College in cooperation with the Maine Township Council on Alcoholism.

Participants will see "Chalk Talk," a film portraying the medical, social, and psychological components of alcoholism Thursday. The following week, Joan Conliff, alcoholism counselor for the Maine Township Council in Alcoholism, will discuss Al-Anon and Ala-Teen, support units organized for children and spouses of alcoholics.

Both sessions will be held at 1 p.m. in Building 3, Room 308 on the Oakton Interim Campus, Oakton and Nagle, Morton Grove. Members of the community are invited to attend free of charge.

Further information is available by calling the Women's Program Office at 967-5120, ext. 350.

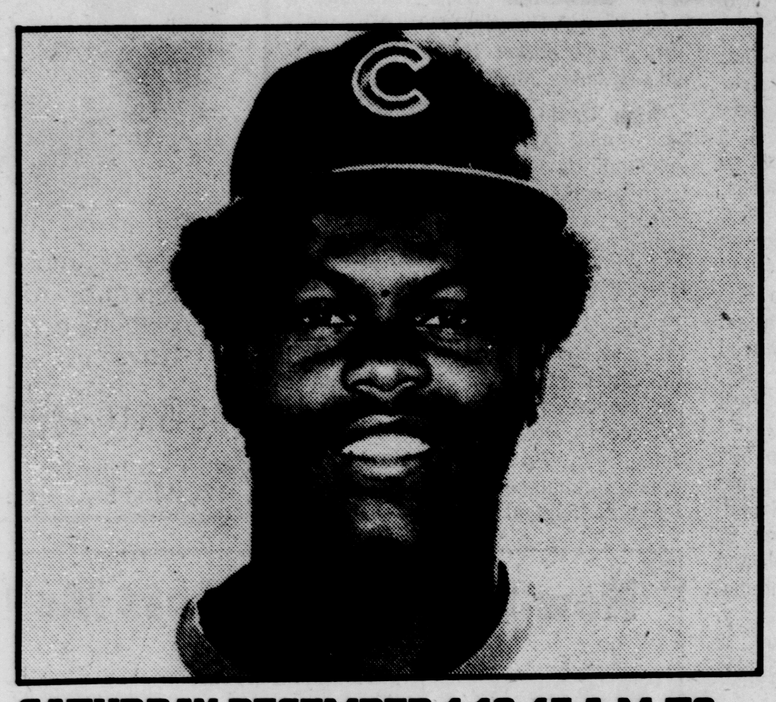
WE'RE HAVING A GRAND OPENING AND A CHRISTMAS PARTY. AND YOU'RE INVITED.

After three years in our temporary quarters, First Federal is celebrating the opening of a beautiful new office on Rand Road in Mount Prospect. And what a perfect season to have a celebration.
Our ribbon cutting will be at 11:00 a.m., Wednesday, Dec. 1st. Santa Claus heads up the festivities, but there'll be sports stars, contests, gifts and refreshments for everyone from December 1st right through Christmas Eve.



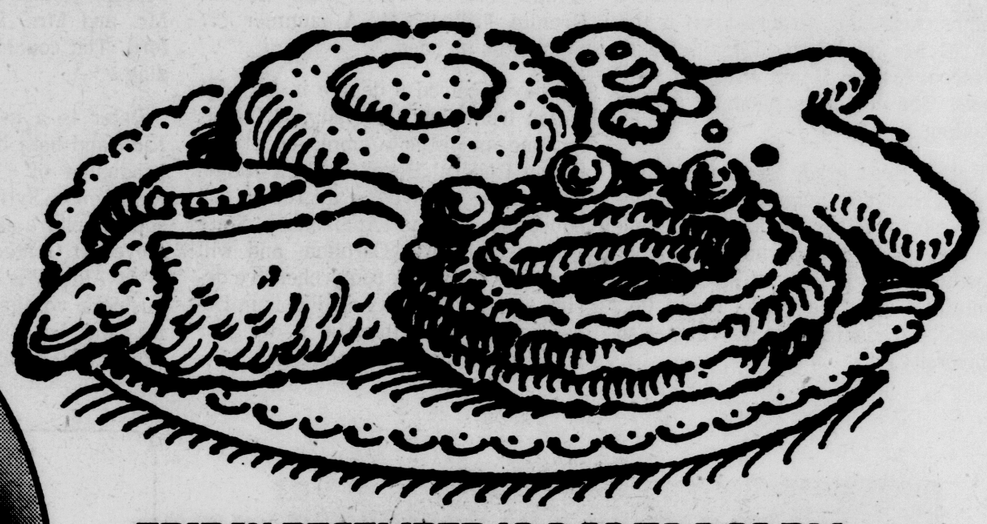
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 10:45 A.M. TO 12:45 P.M. What does Bill Madlock do when he's not winning batting titles for the Chicago Cubs? Ask him. He'll be at the party to talk with you and sign autographs. And to draw the winners for 5 autographed baseballs.

To find out what Santa really looks like, we're going to ask the experts—your kids. For the best drawings of "Santa and His Reindeer," we're giving away First Federal savings accounts. Entries accepted from December 1 to December 18.

ALSO ON DECEMBER 18, 10:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Meet First Federal's man of the season—Santa Claus. He may not be signing autographs, but chances are good your kids will want to talk to him anyway.

Here's a touch of Christmas spirit for you. Your choice of a beautiful Christmas centerpiece of artificial fir and dried flowers, accented with a bright red candle and bow, or an arrangement of dried baby's breath and pinecones in a handsome wicker basket. Either one is free with a deposit of $250 or more in a new or existing savings account at our Mount Prospect office only.*

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11, 10:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Is Eric Nesterenko as tough in person as he was on skates for the Black Hawks? Meet him, get his autograph and find out. There'll also be a drawing for five pairs of Black Hawks tickets.



FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 6:00 TO 8:00 P.M. Who bakes the best cookies, cakes and pastries in the northwest suburbs? Enter our Christmas Baking Contest, and we'll decide. Winners will each receive a $50 First Federal Savings Account, or a free cookbook. (For details, stop by the Mount Prospect Branch.)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18, 11:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Bob Avellini usually finds himself face-to-face with 270-pound tackles who want to knock him down. So he'll be glad to meet friendly people like you who only want his autograph. He'll also draw the winners for 5 autographed footballs.

DECEMBER 20 TO DECEMBER 24. Christmas without Christmas carols is unthinkable. So we've scheduled five days of caroling as a fitting conclusion to our grand opening festivities.

*Offer good at our Mount Prospect office only December 1-24. Supply is limited; one gift per family. Sorry, no mail orders. Offer may be modified or cancelled without notice.

Ask Andy

Libya ranks as world's hottest spot

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Mary McFerrin, 12, of Monmouth Junction, N.J., for her question;

WHAT IS THE HOTTEST PLACE IN THE WORLD?

By almost any standard you care to use, the Sahara Desert is the largest desert in the world. Its total area is almost as large as all 50 of the United States put together. Tucked in the north central portion of the Sahara is a country a little bit larger than Alaska called Libya — where about 90 per cent of the land is desert.

Because of Libya's great expanse of desert and lack of natural resources, it has been a poor country. The discovery of oil, however, in the 1950s suddenly brought the country great wealth. Regardless of its desert area or its oil, Libya holds a record unequaled by any other country in the world. It has the distinction of being the hottest spot on Earth. A temperature of 136.4 degrees F. was reached in the city of Al Aziziyah on Sept. 13, 1922.

Second place in the hot spot sweepstakes is much closer to home — Death Valley, California. On July 10, 1913, the thermometer inched up to 134 degrees F., making it the hottest place in the United States.

Deserts are hot because the air is crystal clear and dry, allowing the sun's rays to come through more strongly. While air temperatures commonly soar to 120 degrees F., the surface temperature of the sand is much hotter. Ground temperatures frequently soar to 160 degrees F. or more. Needless to say, this makes it mighty uncomfortable for the plants and animals that live there.

Plants that grow in the desert have adapted to their hot and dry environment in a number of ways. During millions of years the cacti have stopped growing leaves that give off water in a wasteful fashion. They have developed roots that spread like nets just under the surface of the soil. These roots are ready and willing to soak up moisture from infrequent rainstorms.

Most desert animals do their best to keep out of the hot noonday sun. Some burrow underground, while others hide in any shade they can find. A desert that appears empty at noon may be teeming with life by the time the moon comes out.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Early slams hit-and-miss

Oswald: "The first major changes in the law of contract bridge occurred in late 1932. The new laws included very large penalties, plus grand-slam bonuses at 1500 not vulnerable and 2250 vulnerable. This made grand-slam bidding most important and the fertile brain of Ely Culbertson conceived the first artificial four notrump convention."

Jim: "Why does everyone play Blackwood today instead of Culbertson?"

Oswald: "Because shortly thereafter Easley Blackwood conceived a better and much simpler one. It was a case of an excellent convention driving out a good one. Before they had these conventions, grand-slam bidding was strictly hit or miss. Today's hand shows a hit. South was the late Louis Watson. North the late Edward Hymes Jr."

Jim: "Can you explain why Hymes bid seven when he could not be sure about the ace of spades?"

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Oswald: "Hymes gave a simple answer. He said that Louis just wouldn't open a minimum hand vulnerable and rebid his suit without an ace. If you had known Louis you would appreciate the reasoning. He was a really sound bidder."

A Mississippi reader wants to know when a card is played from dummy in a rubber bridge game.

The rule is specific. A card in dummy must be played if touched by declarer except by accident or for the purpose of rearranging dummy's cards.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Veterinarian sees 2 sides to seal killings

by TONI GINNETTI

The ads decry the killings of young harp seals, snowwhite pups clubbed to death supposedly for their fur.

Citizen groups and humane societies each year display the ads in newspapers throughout the country, calling for public outrage to halt the Canadian government-sanctioned seal roundups.

What draws their wrath is the manner in which the young pups are killed, clubbed repeatedly and then skinned for their fur.

Dr. Daniel Laughlin winces when the subject of those ads arises. It's not that Brookfield Zoo's 35-year-old veterinarian is callous about the mistreatment of animals.

ON THE contrary, his life is committed to caring for animals. But Dr. Laughlin has seen beyond what the newspaper ads portray, and while he is no advocate of wanton destruction of animals, he has seen the seal controversy from both sides.

Dr. Laughlin this year was selected by the National Marine Fisheries Service to accompany the government's annual harvesting of Northern Pacific fur seals in the Pribilof Islands off Alaska.

These seals and the operation run by the Dept. of Commerce are not the same hunts portrayed in the ads. Still the project has been criticized by some groups who oppose destruction of some seals to control the total seal population.

The program has been run since 1911 and takes only surplus males, Dr. Laughlin says. But while the European fur industry purchases the skins, (the United States government bans fur sales in the states) the project aims at conservation of the seal pupulation, he says.

"AS A PERSON dedicated to animal conservation, I get very disturbed when I see distortion of the so-called inhuman destruction (of the seals)," he says.

Daniel Laughlin

Experts say the seal population off the Pribilof Islands, now about 1.3 million, would decline significantly if the harvesting project were ceased, partly because the seals' food supply of fish is not enough to sustain the 500,000 pups born yearly.

But another apparent danger is the threat of wholesale slaughtering of the seals by the Japanese fishing industry if the program is stopped, Dr. Laughlin says. The federal government has a treaty with Japan that prevents the Japanese from killing the seals, a prospect that conservationists fear would be used to "safeguard" the country's fishing industry supply.

Lack of any industry in that Aleutian area also has made the annual month-long seal harvesting project a primary source of jobs on the islands. Most of the Alaskans there are otherwise on welfare, Dr. Laughlin says.

"I DON'T like the killing and I don't think people should have fur coats, but what are you going to do with the people there?" he asks. "And if the Japanese are going to start (killing the seals) again, then I would have to say the program should continue."

About 25,000 males were killed in the July operation, Dr. Laughlin says. The animals were stunned by clubbing and then killed instantly by slashing the thorax.

"The killing is done as humanely as possible," he says. "I made some recommendations. I went in objectively. I admit, though, I was pretty shocked the first day," he says.

The project is not a money making one for the government, costing about $4 to $5 million yearly and bringing in about $1 million less, Dr. Laughlin says.

HUMANE SOCIETIES have been invited to observe the harvesting operation and Thursday at 8 p.m. in Riverside-Brookfield High School Dr. Laughlin will lecture about his observations.

The seal project is shadowed by controversy, but while Dr. Laughlin holds an animal lover's distain for killing, he says he understands those who back the project.

"If the point is valid that so many thousands of the seals will die in the water (because of an insufficient food supply,) that may justify the harvesting," he says.

What irks him more, however, is that so much outrage can be directed at the seal project while other animal mistreatment continues.

"We kill 80 million cows in this country every year in much more inhumane methods," he says. "And people should see what is done in the (dog) pounds in this country every day."

CB buyers get warning on 23 channel set sales

by MICHAEL J. CONLAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal officials say they urged consumers to think twice about buying citizens band radios for Christmas. A poll showed many did not know a new type of radio will be available Jan. 1.

The Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) consumer alert, issued Nov. 23, provoked some angry reaction among CB manufacturers, who say it may confuse shoppers into thinking the sets now available are not good buys.

FTC officials, however, agreed with industry spokesmen that 23-channel sets are good buys for those who prefer their advantages of lower cost and sharper reception.

Some CB industry spokesmen said the commission should have included that information in its consumer alert.

Defending their action, FTC officials said a survey showed 40 per cent of those polled did not know that the number of CB channels will expand from 23 to 40 on Jan. 1, and that 40-channel sets will become available after that date.

They said the FTC had to ensure that consumers understand a more versatile radio will soon be available, and that distributors do not try to sell out their 23-channel inventories to unsuspecting Christmas shoppers.

SOME 50 MILLION Americans already own 23-channel sets.

The FTC advised potential CB buyers to find out first if the 23-channel set they want can be converted later to 40 channels, how that may be done, how long it will take and how much it will cost.

"Is it worth it for the consumer to pay an extra $100" for 40-channel models, asked Emery Klein, president of B and B Export Inc., of Troy, Mich.

He said 23-channel sets are selling at from $49 to $59, while 40-channel versions will cost about $100 more.

CRAIG MARTIN, Carbondale, Ill., president of the Communications Equipment Distributors Association, estimated 40-channel radios might cost twice as much as 23-channel sets though they will not receive as well.

"Because of the severe receiver restrictions placed on the 40-channel models by the FCC," Martin said, "they will not receive as well as today's 23-channel units.

"Several manufacturers plan to continue manufacture of 23-channel units under the 'grandfather' type acceptance of that particular radio because many CBers would rather have a high performing 23-channel set than a reduced performance 40-channel set. It boils down to the old saying 'if you can't hear 'em you can't talk to 'em.' "

Asked why did the government set Jan. 1 — instead of a date compatible with the Chritmas shopping period — for the start of 40-channel distribution, a spokesman for the Federal Communications Commission, which set the date, said the decision was "arbitrary."

"It seemed like a logical date," he said.

He said the industry did not ask for any specific date.

"Actually, 30 days one way or the other would not have made that much difference," an FTC lawyer said.

Bears handle Green Bay, Payton rushes past O.J.

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Walter Payton surpassed Buffalo's O. J. Simpson Sunday as the leading rusher in the National Football League this season.

Victory, however, was all that mattered to the Chicago Bears' second-year running back.

Payton gained 110 yards in 27 carries as the Bears beat the Green Bay Packers 16-10 in near-zero temperatures and kept alive their hopes of a winning season and a second place finish in the NFC Central Division.

The win also gave Chicago a sweep over Green Bay for the first time since 1963.

BOB THOMAS kicked three field goals and the Bears held on in the closing seconds.

Thomas put the Bears ahead for good at 13-10 with a 22-yard field goal late in the third quarter and moments after cornerback Allan Ellis picked off his second pass of the day, Thomas connected from 25 yards with 9:46 left in the game.

The Packers, who trailed 10-3 at the half, tied the game on Carlos Brown's 11-yard TD pass to Ken Payne early in the third quarter.

Reserve quarterback Randy Johnson replaced Brown and led the Packers to the Bears' 39 in the final minute. But the drive ended there, preserving the Bears' seventh victory in 12 games. The Packers dropped to 4-8.

THE BEARS spurted to an early 10-0 lead on Thomas' 40-yard field goal and Bob Avellini's 49-yard pass to James Scott. On the touchdown, Scott beat cornerback Willie Buchanon, then caught the pass on his fingertips on the Packers' 10.

Chester Marcol's 45-yard field goal, his longest this season, cut Chicago's lead to 10-3 at the half. But Green Bay, plagued by mistakes, blew four scoring opportunities in the second quarter.

Green Bay twice recovered Payton fumbles in Chicago territory but Marcol missed field goals of 41 and 31 yards. In between, Packer fullback John Brockington lost a fumble at the Bears' nine and Ellis picked off a Brown pass at the Chicago three.

Payton's performance gave him 1,158 yards or 29 more than Simpson, who gained an NFL record 273 yards in the Bills' losing effort against the Detroit Lions on Thanksgiving Day. His total is now only 73 yards short of the Bears' single season rushing record, held by Gale Sayers.

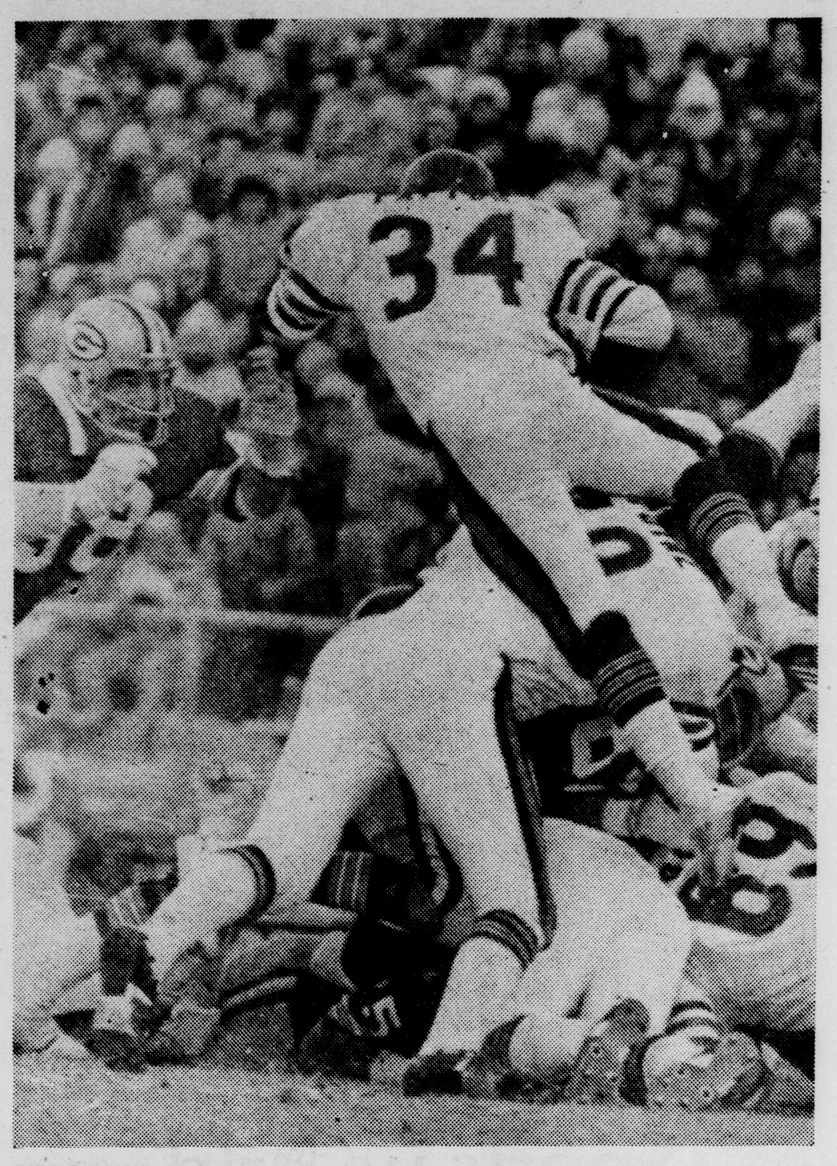
THE LIONS allowed Payton only 40 yards last Sunday and beat the Bears 14-10.

"Right now my mind is on playing team ball," Payton said. "I don't let my personal goals interfere with team goals."

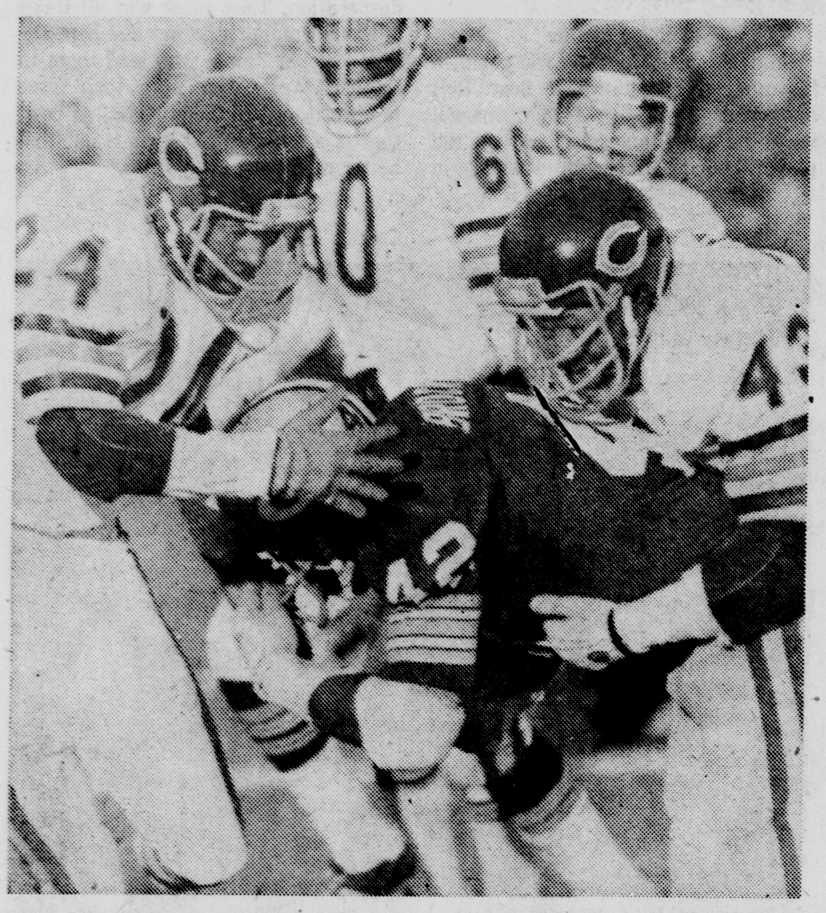
The temperature at Lambeau Field was six degrees — 14 below considering the wind chill factor — but Payton didn't use that as an excuse.

"The lines of communication between the quarterback and the halfback were kind of mixed up on those," he said. He admitted it was cold, but added that Simpson inspired him to overcome the elements as well as the Packers.

"I was just inspired by O.J.," Payton said.



LEAPING WALTER Payton of the Bears (34) sails high over teammate Lionel Antoine in battle Sunday afternoon in frigid Green Bay. Packer linebacker Don Hansen moves in from the left. Payton ran for 110 yards in the Bears' 16-10 victory.



SURROUNDED. Green Bay's John Brockington has no room to run here as the Bears' Virgil Livers, left and Craig Clemons put the clamps on. Wally Chambers (60) moves in from behind just to make sure. The Bears won, 16-10.

Area lands three holiday crowns; Arlington romps past Elgin, 61-42

"If we get through the first five games, we'll know what we have," said George Zigman prior to Arlington's first basketball game.

The Cardinals' head coach was thinking of the very testing schedule ahead — Proviso West, Hinsdale Central, Willowbrook, York and Elgin.

"I'd rather have it that way, to be honest with you," added Zigman.

HIS SCRAPPY Cardinal team dropped its opener to one of the best teams in the suburbs. Then the Cards caught fire.

"They're believing in themselves and that's part of the battle," said Zigman after his boys crushed Elgin to win the York holiday tourney Saturday, 61-42.

"I'm pleased with my kids winning that tournament," said Zigman. "Year in and year out those are name basketball schools. The kids are enthused. We set out some goals and one of them was to win this tournament."

Dave Kamps

Greg Kloiber

Arlington cruised through its three games in four days. The Cards whipped Willowbrook 53-44, but blew quite a few layups that might have made the outcome much more lopsided. Then they blasted York 73-51 and polished off an Elgin team that is coached by one of the giants among coaches, Bill Chesbrough — winner of over 600 games.

"IT'S NICE to beat those guys who are always in the limelight," said Zigman, whose team is now 4-1 on the season. "It's not one of Bill's better Elgin teams, but I do think they're going to get better."

So are the Cardinals. Saturday night they had a new scoring leader — Dave Kamps. The 6-foot-3 senior forward poured in 18 points.

Card teammates Frank DeSimone and Tom North turned in the top defensive jobs. DeSimone held Rich Leach to four points and North limited Richard Hersey to nine. Both Maroons normally lead their team in scoring with double figure averages.

DeSimone has been a defensive whiz throughout the team's first five games, stopping one outstanding player after another. In this most recent win, the 6-0 senior guard also had time to score six points. North had seven.

GREG KLOIBER'S steady work underneath, offensively, defensively and in rebounding, has also been a key to the Cards' four straight wins over testing opponents. The muscular 6-4 center tossed in 14 points. Although that figure was his lowest of the output of the season, he carried a hefty 17.8 average.

Dan Frase, the smallest starter at 5-6, has been in the thick of things throughout, handing out assists and running the offense.

Zigman has also been pleased with his bench, especially 5-11 guard Kenny Johnson and 6-1 forward Jim Zobel.

In the Elgin game, Arlington built a halftime lead of 30-23 to 51-34 after three quarters because of some hustling play.

"OUR PRESS was very effective," said Zigman, who called off the press in the fourth quarter. His team locked up the game in the third period with Kamps hitting six of his nine field goals in that eight-minute segment, many on fastbreak layups.

The only "minus" of the game was Arlington's foul shooting — a very unusual seven out of 17.

Nevertheless, the Cardinals have picked up their over-all scoring place since dropping their opener to Proviso, 62-52. The past four games they've been scoring 64 points while allowing just 45. And that's enough to make any head coach smile.

Lions unbeaten in four games

What a difference a year makes.

Last year at this time, the St. Viator cagers had just finished up a draining Thanksgiving tournament at Streator and were 1-3. But this year, the Lions of coach Ron Cregier appear ready to take that first big step back to basketball respectability.

Their 56-47 come-from-behind win over St. Edward's of Elgin Saturday night gave them the Thanksgiving tournament championship at Crown, set their record at a perfect 4-0, and put the spring back in Cregier's step.

DOWN 34-25 at halftime against St. Edward's, the Lions held the opposition to just 13 second half points and won going away, led by senior forward Steve Notaro's 18 points and junior center Paul Wiloff's 25 rebounds. Limiting St. Edward's to just one shot per trip down the court — they could manage just three second shots in the entire second half — Viator caught up and took a 43-41 lead with 6:30 left in the fourth quarter, then reeled off eight straight points to lead 51-41 with four minutes left, and St. Edward's never threatened again.

"I told them at halftime hot to expect to get all nine points back right away," said Cregier, who's beginning his second year at the helm of the Lions. "Then they go right out and get seven of them back by the end of the third quarter.

"We're over the hump. Last year we would be down like that and couldn't come back," said Cregier. "Now the boys have shown themselves they can come back.

"If there would have been a most valuable player award at the tourney, it would have gone to Notaro," said Cregier, who was full of praise for his 6-2 forward. "He averaged 18 points per game in the three games of the tourney and was just outstanding everywhere else."

CREGIER ALSO praised the 6-7 Wiloff, who may be the key to the Lions' season hopes.

"Going up against two guys who were 6-5 and 6-6, Paul pulled down 25 boards and he held St. Edward's leading scorer (Mike Hannula) to nine points and none in the second half," said Cregier.

The Lions get right back to work today in preparation for Friday's conference opener at Notre Dame.

ON GUARD. Buffalo Grove's Scott Groot brings the ball up court during the Niles West Holiday Tournament. The 6-0 playmaker guard helped the Bison win three straight games to capture tourney championship honors over the long weekend.

Will Yankees make bid to land Dent in trade?

From Herald Wire Services

Will the New York Yankees make a determined push to land shortstop Bucky Dent of the White Sox?

That appears more likely now with the expected announcement today that Reggie Jackson has signed a multi-year contract with the Yankees in excess of $2 million.

With nine other left-handed hitters — including their top two minor league prospects — on their roster, the Yankees most surely will try to put together a trade package to fill their lone remaining weak spot — shortstop.

DENT OF THE White Sox and Chris Speier of the San Francisco Giants would appear to be the most likely targets for a deal at the upcoming winter meetings beginning next Monday in Los Angeles.

Jackson, the 30-year-old slugging outfielder who played out his option with the Baltimore Orioles last season, probably will join former Cincinnati Reds' ace left-hander Don Gullett as the second free agent from the reentry draft signed by the Yankees. While Gullett's six-year contract, signed Nov. 18, was worth $2 million, Jackson reportedly will receive a total package of bonus, salary and deferred payments worth nearly $2.5 million.

Surprisingly, both the Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres, finalists with the Yankees in the bidding for Jackson's services, made substantially higher offers for the charismatic slugger. But it was the prospect of playing in the media-centered New York, where he already enjoys numerous outside business interests, which in the end lured Jackson to the Yankees.

IT WAS THAT same "big city" pitch which enabled Yankee owner George Steinbrenner to sign Jackson's former Oakland teammate, Catfish Hunter, to a million dollar contract two years ago when the righthander was freed from his contract with A's owner Charles O. Finley because of a legal technicality.

Bison rally for honors at Niles

Buffalo Grove rallied for six straight points in the final two minutes to edge Libertyville 42-41 Saturday and strut off with championship honors at the Niles West Holiday Basketball Tournament.

Fred Kruse continued to be the Bison man of the hour, coming off the bench to score 14 points, including the game winner at the 1:01 mark.

"He's the John Havlicek of our team," smiled Grove coach Paul Grady afterwards of his 6-3 junior reservist, referring to the way Havlicek used to operate as a spectacular sixth man with the Boston Celtics.

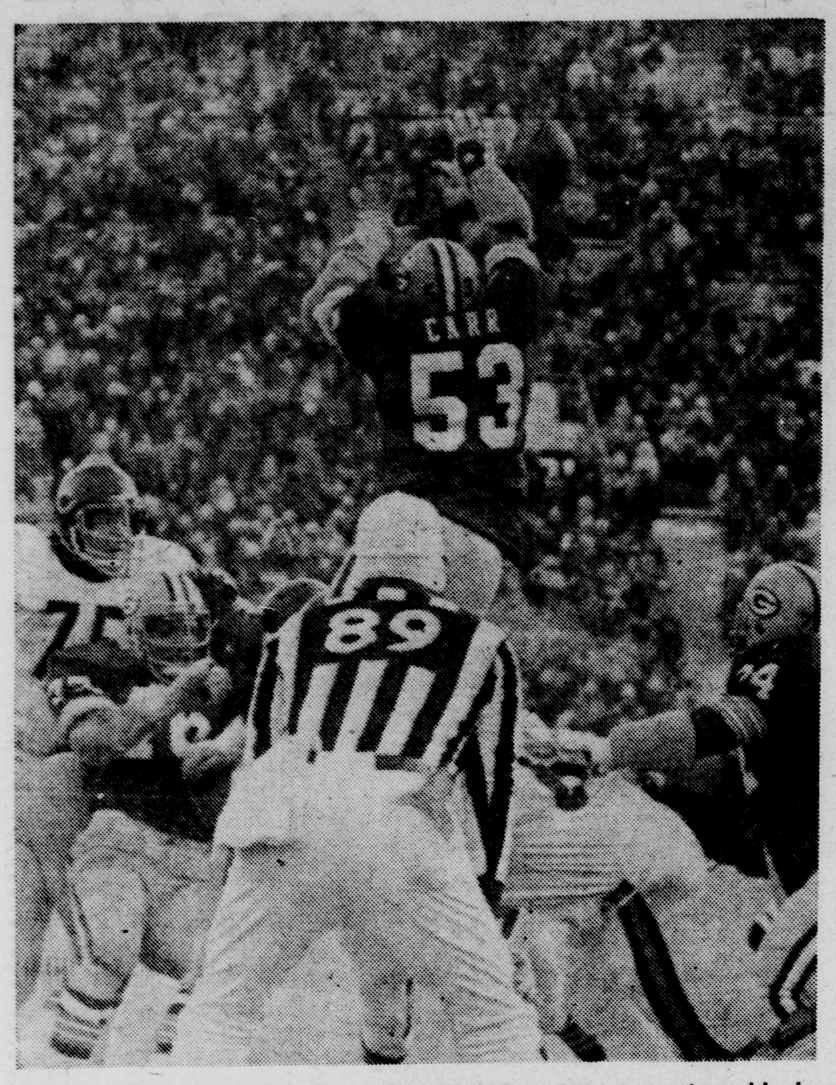
KRUSE IN RELIEF roles through three tournament games scored a total of 32 points. "He's been an important factor in all our wins this season," added Grady.

Kruse's 12-foot jumper from the key capped a see-saw affair that had Buffalo Grove trailing by spans of as many as six and seven points throughout the contest. The Wildcats opened a 6-0 bulge right at the beginning of the game, but Buffalo Grove rallied behind Brian Allsmiller to take a 12-10 lead out of the first quarter.

Libertyville came back to knot the contest at 14-all and eventually built up a 25-18 intermission bulge. They padded their lead to nine momentarily in the third period on a 15-footer by Tim Matthews but Kruse quickly countered with a pair of inside shots and the Bison came slowly back to assume a 34-33 edge by the end of the third stanza.

IN THE LAST QUARTER the 'Cats spurted ahead again. Jim Lenzini hit a pair of free throws at 3:43 and followed up with a hook shot to put his team on top 41-36. With 2:14 to go however Mike Ledna bagged a pair of free throws and Allsmiller connected from underneath on Scott Groot's high lob to pull the Bison within one at 1:38.

After Kruse put Grove ahead, the Wildcats elected to wait the clock out and take a last second shot. It was wide and Mike Marshall snared the rebound to insure the fourth straight Bison win of the season.



DUNK SHOT? Green Bay linebacker Fred Carr (53) just misses blocking a field goal by the Bears' Bob Thomas in the third quarter Sunday afternoon in Green Bay. Thomas had three field goals in the Bears' 16-10 victory.

Steelers sting Bengals; keep playoff hopes alive

The Pittsburgh Steelers are still alive in their quest for an unprecedented third consecutive Super Bowl title.

The Steelers, faced with elimination Sunday at Cincinnati, rallied on Franco Harris' four-yard run through the snow to defeat the Bengals 7-3 and move to within a game of first place in the American Conference Central Division.

It was Pittsburgh's seventh straight win while the Bengals had a five-game winning streak snapped. Two of Cincinnati's three losses this year have been to the Steelers.

In order for Pittsburgh to make the playoffs, Cincinnati must lose to either Oakland or the New York Jets in the next two weeks while Pittsburgh continues to win.

Cincinnati took a 3-0 lead on rookie Chris Bahr's 40-yard field goal in the first quarter but with 22 seconds to go in the third period, Harris plowed four yards for the winning score. It was set up by Dwight White's recovery of Boobie Clark's fumble at the Bengal 24.

The entire second half was played in a driving snowstorm. The snow quickly covered the artificial turf and players were hampered by treacherous footing the final two quarters.

In other games Sunday, it was Houston 20 Atlanta 14, New England 38 Denver 14, Cleveland 17 Miami 13, Baltimore 33 the Jets 16, Washington 24 Philadelphia 0, The New York Giants 28 Seattle 16, Kansas City 23 San Diego 20, Los Angeles 33 New Orleans 14 and Oakland 49 Tampa Bay 16.

Clinch playoff slot

Bert Jones, the NFL'S top Passer, fired three TD passes in a 24-point second period barrage as Baltimore clinched a playoff berth by whipping the Jets. The Colts are 10-2, a game ahead of New England in the AFC East. If they fail to win the division title, they still are assured a wild card playoff spot.

Jones hit 22-of-32 passes for 175 yards and threw TD passes of five yards to Don McCauley, 14 to Lydell Mitchell and 31 to Roger Carr. Toni Linhart added a career-high four field goals.

Rookie cornerback Mike Haynes returned a punt 62 yards for a score and intercepted a pass while the defensive line notched nine quarterback sacks to steer playoff-bound New England over Denver. The victory pushed the Patriots' record to 9-3 and kept them a game ahead with two left in the race for the AFC wild card berth. New England needs one more victory to clinch its first playoff berth in 13 years.

Don Calhoun, filling in for injured Sam Cunningham, gained a Patriots' season-high of 177 yards in 25 carries to go over the 100-yard mark for the third straight game.

Thomas over 1,000

Mike Thomas caught two of Bill Kilmer's three TD passes and surpassed the 1,000 yard rushing mark as Washington shut out Philadelphia and gained ground in the NFC playoff scramble. The victory boosted the Redskins into an 8-4 tie with St. Louis with two games left and strengthened their chances for at least a wild card playoff berth.

Both of Thomas' TD receptions of 17 and 14 yards came after fumble recoveries by Dennis Johnson and Kilmer's other TD pass to Frank Grant came after a 43-yard punt return by Eddie Brown, who set a NFL record of 566 punt return yards for the year.

Brian Sipe threw TD passes to Paul Warfield and Reggie Rucker as Cleveland edged Miami in a swirling snowstorm to keep its playoff hopes alive. Warfield, the former Dolphin starring against his old team on his 34th birthday, caught a 12-yard pass from Sipe and Rucker took an 18-yarder as the Browns won their seventh game in the last eight weeks to lift their record to 8-4.

TD passes at 23

Ken Stabler threw two TD passes to run his season total to 23 and three Oakland running backs accounted for four more scores to spark the Raiders' rout of winless Tampa Bay. The win gave the AFC playoff-bound Raiders an 11-1 record, best in the NFL, while the expansion Bucs suffered their 12th loss in as many starts.

Rookie Pat Haden fired two short TD passes in the first half and scored on a seven-yard keeper in the fourth period as Los Angeles moved a step closer to its fourth straight NFC West title by beating New Orleans. The Rams can clinch the division crown Monday night if San Francisco loses to Minnesota in the national TV game.

In games involving non-contenders: Ed Podolak ran 127 yards and two touchdowns and Jan Stenerud kicked three field goals Sunday to pace the Kansas City Chiefs to a 23-20 victory over the San Diego Chargers.

Mike Livingston completed 14 passes in 27 attempts for 195 yards to give the Chiefs their fourth win, all on the road. Stenerud's kicks came from 26, 28 and 40 yards in the see-saw battle that saw the lead change six times.

Giants in rout

Craig Morton threw passes of three yards to Gary Shirk and 19 yards to Ed Marshall for the Giants' first aerial touchdowns in seven weeks to lead New York to its biggest offensive output of the season, a 28-16 victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

Reserve running back Gordon Bell, playing because of a groin pull to regular Doug Kotar, added a pair of rushing touchdowns of two and 21 yards as the Giants recorded their second victory in 11 games.

The touchdowns were the first in the National Football careers of all three players. Shirk and Marshall are refugees from the World Football League and Bell was fourth round draft pick from Michigan.

John Hadl fired touchdown passes of 40 and 16 yards and directed the Houston Oilers to their first victory in seven games with a mistake-prone 20-14 win over the Atlanta Falcons.

Backup Atlanta quarterback Kim McQuilken, forced into the game when Scott Hunter was shaken up, directed the Falcons 74 yards in the closing minutes but the final drive died at the six yard line on an incomplete pass in the end zone.

Earlier in the first half, Hunter threw a 27-yard TD pass to Alfred Jenkins to stake Atlanta to a 14-10 lead. Bubba Bean's 49-yard halfback pass to John Gilliam went for the other Falcon touchdown.

Monday's game

Unless Coach Monte Clark changes his mind overnight, rookie Scott Bull of Arkansas will be at quarterback when the San Francisco 49ers face the playoff-bound Minnesota Vikings in Monday Night NFL football at Candlestick Park.

The game hasn't been sold out and while there will be a crowd of about 58,000 on hand, television will black out the local area.

The 49ers are reeling at 6-5, having lost their last four starts, while the Vikings, with one of the defenses in the NFL as well as master-magician Fran Tarkenton at quarterback, have won nine games, lost one and tied one, and are playing out the season en route to the NFC Playoffs.

While the game thus means little to the Vikings, the 49ers are in a state of desperation. They must win all three of their remaining games and hope the Los Angeles Rams, who lead them in the NFC West, drop two of their three in order to reach the playoffs. At best, that is a longshot bet even a habitual bettor might shy away from.

Former Notre Dame star leads Ottawa to Canadian crown

TORONTO — Tom Clements' 24-yard touchdown pass to Tony Gabriel with 20 seconds left Sunday lifted the Ottawa Rough Riders to a come-from-behind 23-20 Grey Cup upset victory over the Saskatchewan Roughriders and the Canadian Football League championship.

Clements' dramatic touchdown pass came a minute after Saskatchewan appeared to have sealed a victory with a goalline stand that stalled Ottawa a yard from the goalline.

But Saskatchewan couldn't move the ball from its end and was forced to punt from its own end zone. Clements, a former star at Notre Dame, then fired to Gabriel, a former Syracuse star, cutting towards the right corner of the end zone. He hauled it in to give the Rough Riders their 14th CFL title.

Ottawa kicked off in the dying seconds but the clock ran out and the record crowd of 53,389 poured on to the field at the Canadian National Exhibition Coliseum.

Saskatchewan had seemed to lock up the game with the goalline defense. It had control most of the game, mainly on the strong passing of veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster.

ACC teams struggle in college basketball play

For a certain kind of Atlantic Coast Conference basketball team, it was not a very good day. All three nationally ranked ACC teams lost Saturday. Two of them fell to ACC teams not ranked in the top 20.

The Big Four tournament in Greensboro, N.C., with four ACC teams, was the site of two upsets. Wake Forest beat No. 3 North Carolina on two free throws by Skip Brown with one second remaining in overtime. It was Wake Forest's third straight Big Four championship. In the consolation game, Tate Armstrong scored 23 points to lead Duke over No. 14 North Carolina State 84-82.

In College Park, Md., Donald "Duck" Williams sank a 20-foot shot with 20 seconds remaining in overtime to send Notre Dame past 11th-ranked Maryland 80-79.

ELSEWHERE AMONG the nation's top 20, second-ranked Michigan opened its season with a 94-70 victory over Western Kentucky, No. 4 UCLA struggled past DePaul 76-69, No. 5 Indiana beat South Dakota 110-64, No. 6 Kentucky defeated Wisconsin 72-64, No. 12 San Francisco edged Santa Barbara 92-85 in overtime and No. 13 Tennessee downed South Florida 94-64.

Rickey Green scored 25 points to lead Michigan past Western Kentucky. Sophomores David Greenwood and Roy Hamilton each scored 10 second-half points to help UCLA beat DePaul. Wayne Radford scored 18 points and Kent Benson added 17 as defending national champion Indiana defeated South Dakota.

Rick Robey, a 6-10 junior center who missed the last half of last season with a knee injury, scored 13 points to lead Kentucky over Wisconsin. Kentucky rewarded a crowd of 23,266 which attended the first game ever in Rupp Arena in Lexington, Ky. Winford Boynes scored 24 points and James Hardy added 23 to lift San Francisco over Santa Barbara. Ernie Grunfeld scored 37 points to lead Tennessee over South Florida.

Tennessee contacts Johnny Majors

PITTSBURGH — University of Pittsburgh coach Johnny Majors met with representatives of the Tennessee athletic department during the weekend to discuss their offer that he replace resigning coach Bill Battle at his alma mater, a Pitt spokesman said Sunday.

Majors himself made one brief comment concerning the job offer on his Sunday television show.

"I have been contacted by Tennessee," Majors said. "I will talk with them and I will also talk with my people at the University of Pittsburgh."

The Pitt spokesman said Majors made it clear that will be the extent of his comments on the situation for the moment.

In-state image crucial to any Illinois success

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Why was Bob Blackman ousted at Illinois?

Wasn't his record against n embers of the "Other Eight" — 24 and 11 with one tie — acceptable? Wasn't it, under the circumstances, unreasonable to expect success against Ohio State and Michigan?

It is a complex question that athletic director Cecil Coleman alluded to when he referred vaguely to (1) rapport and (2) recruiting.

While Blackman was always enormously energetic and painstakingly organized, at 58 he was nevertheless a grandfather involved in a game for post-teenagers.

HE WASN'T aloof. But he WAS on a different wave length.

He tried — HE REALLY DID — to break the two-generation gap, but he was not always successful. His difficulties with his quarterbacks, with the notable exception of an understanding Jeff Hollenbach, were especially hurtful.

Blackman's offense, by its natu placed tremendous pressure on the signal caller. But he "lost" the Chicago press that first year and demoralized Mike Wells with comments up north about Wells' inability to comprehend the intricacies of his multiple attack.

It was a mistake as glaring as Bob's unthinking statement about Illini fans "not deserving a winner" early this season.

ON THE quarterback business, he never quite made full contact with Springfield's Jim Kopatz, admittedly not an easy athlete to handle, and opened the 1976 campaign with a disgruntled Kurt Steger. Kurt was still burning over Blackman's insistence that he drop baseball in favor of spring football, and stated to members of the traveling press corps (skywriters):

"I just can't talk to the man. He listens but he doesn't lear. I would make the point that he promised me beforehand that I could play baseball, but then he would go right back into the same old speech."

Blackman always made good points in his "speeches." They were always well thought out. But he took too long in delivery. Every time. He bored the athletes and frustrated the assistant coaches. Bob never used 100 words when 500 words would do. In the process, he lost the inspirational edge that leaders must have. Illini players had to be self-motivators. Some like Stu Levenick and Scott Studwell could do it. Others could not.

COACHES AND veteran players still tell the story about the day Ray Eliot was invited to speak to the squad just prior to a game. As the always-inspirational Eliot built his talk to a cresendo, tears welled up in some of the athletes' eyes and they were ready to climb the walls.

Then, as a graduating senior tells it, Blackman took over . . . and by the time he turned them loose, the mood had been lost.

This inability to "sell" carried over into recruiting, and partially explains why Illini successes in this field were better in distant areas than in-state. The story that some UI coaches actually sought to limit their recruits' time with the head man are true. Illini aides were convinced that Blackman "turned off" prospects in the past with long speeches.

Last year the state university landed just four 1975 All-Staters from a list of 26 who were offered scholarships — Scott Scholz, Ray Pavesic, Bret Carsello and Dave Kelly. The year before the Illini landed six with a seventh, Bob Noelke, transferring back after a year in the Air Force prep school.

COLEMAN FEELS the UI absolutely must improve its in-state image and begin attracting more in-state preps. For one thing, it is much cheaper than going to New York and Miami for talent. For another, Coleman is building a network of in-state helpers and visualizes a groundswell of state support if a new coach can generate the momentum.

This was the key factor in making the change. It wasn't that Blackman had done a poor job, whatever you thought of his play selection, his rapport or his ability to motivate. The concern was with the future. Recruiting wasn't likely to get better with all the speculation about the man, and crowds were sure to fall off sharply in 1977 with Illinois expected to lose early to Michigan and Missouri.

The move was made while the situation was still repairable. Blackman's successor will inherit a sound, well coached squad. And there is little doubt that whoever the man is, he'll do better in in-state recruiting than Blackman would have done under the circumstances.

Holiday tourney action

Falcons, Vikings, Mustangs win

A herald Staff Report

Forest View parlayed another hot night at the free throw line into their second straight triumph at Woodstock Saturday, edging Grant 60-63 for consolation championship honors in the holiday tournament.

The Falcons, who hit on only two of eight charity tosses in dropping their tourney opener to Marian Catholic, have now put together back-to-back 17 of 22 showing at the line.

Saturday that demonstration of free throw accuracy overcame a 25-23 deficit in field goals and allowed Forest View to maintain a slim lead through the game.

In the fourth period the Falcons hit on eight of ten gratis tosses, led by Craig Chuipek's four-for-five effort.

For the second straight game the Falcons also produced a balanced scoring effort that had four players hitting for double figures. Bob Cameron led the way with 17 while Chris Hanson chipped in 12, Jeff Martinski 11 and Chuipek 10.

Kerry Kelly and Bob Soderman paced Grant with 19 and 16 points respectively.

VIKINGS EXPLODE

Fremd put 13 players into the scorebook during an 82-55 rout of St. Francis of Wheaton to win consolation honors at the Glenbard West Holiday Tournament.

While burning the cords offensively wity 80 shot attempts, the Vikings were equally as impressive on defense as they limited St. Francis to just three field goals in the first quarter and two in the second.

A sticky zone press helped ignite a sizzling Fremd fast break that boosted the Vikes into a commanding 39-21 halftime lead. The starting five was yanked by head coach Mo Tharp at intervals in the third quarter.

BALANCED SCORING highlighted Fremd's thrust as Dale Hallberg and Craig Rawlins shared honors with 15 each, Jeff Curtin popped in a dozen and Dave McKinney tossed in 11 off the bench.

"We played a lot better defense," Tharp said, "but we committed 30 fouls in the process. That's far too many, but I was encouraged by our hustle."

Fremd doubled St. Francis on the boards, 46-23, and saw its lead balloon to 61-35 after three periods. The Vikings' bench spiced the attack with a 21-20 fourth-quarter scoring advantage.

MUSTANGS ROLL, 69-58

Rolling Meadows got its act together by outscoring Niles North, 42-30 in the second half en route to a 69-58 triumph in the Fenton Holiday Tournament. The triumph was the Mustangs' second in three outings.

Trailing 18-10 in the second quarter, Meadows shored its man-to-man defense and turned Kent Walker and Bob Rose loose on offense at the other end in the decisive second half.

Walker poured through 16 of his 18 points in the final two quarters by crashing the offensive boards and cashing three-point plays. Rose highlighted a 21-12 fourth-quarter spurt with eight of his 11 points. most of them coming off steals in the backcourt.

DESPITE SHOOTING only 34 per cent from the floor the Mustangs put up 77 shots. Kevin Kiley shared team scoring honors with 18, Dave Crouch contributed 17 and Jeff Schrock five.

Niles North's Ron Lapping scored 17 and helped the Vikings to a 34-24 edge in rebounding. Kiley ripped down 11 for the Mustangs.

PIRATES FALL TO WARREN

The Palatine Pirates shook off a 13-point deficit early in the second quarter to draw even with Warren at halftime but slipped in the final two periods and lost 51-41 in the Mundelein Holiday Tournament Saturday.

Palatine (1-3) trailed 19-9 after one quarter and 22-9 early in the second period before outscoring Warren 16-3 to force a 25-all deadlock at the half.

Doug Buenzow, a forward who recently returned to the team after a bout with pneumonia, and Chris Plazak led the second period charge.

Plazak finished with eight points while Buenzow popped for nine. Kevin McKenna led Palatine with 17.

Warren's 6-2 forward Mike Kolar led everybody with 23 points.

PROSPECT FALLS

Maine South was in rare mid-season form Saturday night. As far as the Prospect Knights were concerned, it was a most unfortunate situation.

"They ran so well we just couldn't get back," said Knight coach Bill Slayton. "They hadn't played this well before."

The Hawks broke open the game in the second quarter, hitting on 15 of 19 field goals. That 33-point period launched them to a 101-80 victory in the final night of the round robin held at Maine South. It was Prospect's third loss in four games.

SLAYTON PRAISED the job turned in by Steve Mather. The 6-3 senior forward led the Knights with 18 points. Also hitting for double figures were Dave LaCosse with 13 and Paul Izban with 12.

Maine was led by Russ Schmelzer's 33.

WARRIORS FALL SHORT

Two free throws by Jeff Ryan with two seconds left in the game broke a 58-all tie and gave New Trier East a 60-58 win over the luckless Maine West Warriors.

With scoring aces Bob Zuccarini and Pete Karrabas on the bench due to fouls, the Warriors got one final shot at the basket, but Bob Anderson's halfcourt bomb was off the mark.

It was the third straight loss for Maine West and all three have been by two points or less.

East pulled out to an 8-0 lead Saturday, but the Warriors closed to within a point by the end of the opening period. West trailed by four at the half but managed to catch East in the third quarter and kept it close down to the wire. Taking in extra bench time due to four, first-half fouls, New Trier's Tom Hall still managed to score 22 points to lead all scorers before fouling out in the final period.

Zuccarini and Karrabas paced the Warriors with 17 and 15 points respectively.

Maine West, now 1-3 on the young season opens the conference season Friday night when they'll again tangle with Maine South on the road.

HERSEY BOWS TO R-B

The Hersey Huskies repeated themselves Saturday, turning in a strong first quarter and then wilting before falling to Riverside-Brookfield 82-71 in the Glenbard West Holiday Tournament.

The frustrations the Huskies experienced are evident in the play of guard T. R. Frye.

While Hersey scrambled to a 27-22 first period lead, Frye burned the nets on six of eight field goal attempts.

Riverside fought back to tie the score at halftime and pull away in the final two periods as Frye missed on every shot he took after the first quarter.

Riverside's 6-5 John Gronke also battered the Huskies inside, working over a succession of Hersey centers for 36 points.

Frye led the Huskies with 17 points while Jim Thomas (14), Mark Miesfeldt (12) and Todd Walker (10) hit in double figures.

Riverside's Jim Dolezal and Doug Smith combined for 26 points.

WILDCATS DROP THREE

Wheeling battled gamely but lost three close scrapes to strong teams at the Batavia Thanksgiving Basketball Tournament over the weekend.

Friday the Wildcats were edged by hosts 77-71. Saturday afternoon they were edged by West Aurora 60-50 and that evening they fell 71-59 to Proviso West.

In their opener with the Bulldogs, Wheeling led by two points with five minutes remaining after the game had see-sawed through the first three periods. The 'Cats had trailed by two at halftime and were behind at the end of the first and third periods as well but never fell out of reach until a final Batavia flurry.

The Blackhawks outscored Wheeling 17-7 in the third quarter after trailing at halftime 26-23. But the Wildcats rallied in the fourth quarter and pulled within four with 1:26 left on the clock. West Aurora, the number two finishing team in the state last year, then opened up to win going away.

Proviso West led Wheeling all the way and had a 20-point bulge in the third stanza before the 'Cats bounced back to pull within two, 47-45, going into the last quarter. The Panthers won the tournament championship.

Brian Begrowicz and Jim Sabel connected for 25 and 21 respectively in the Batavia outing. They also led the club with 20 and 22 points against Proviso while Ken Paulus hit for 12 and Sabel for 17 versus Aurora.

Sabel's efforts earned the soph standout a berth on the six-man all-tournament team.

Hawks bow in DuPage test, 79-77

The shots were there, both from the field and the free throw line, but they didn't fall and the Harper Hawks lost a 79-77 decision to Lake County Saturday in the DuPage Tournament.

Harper's Jim Arden, who led the Hawks with 25 points, stepped to the line with 0:16 left in the game and the Hawks trailing by one point.

Both of Arden's free throws, awarded after the Lake County coach earned a technical, missed and the out of bounds play following couldn't find the basket.

THE HAWKS regained the ball again with four seconds left but again the shot rolled off the rim.

"It was highly disappointing that we lost," said Harper coach Roger Bechtold, whose team sits 0-2 for the season. "And it's harder to take because we had so many opportunities to win."

The Hawks were without starting forward Scott Green and starting guard Mark Russo but Bechtold is hoping they will be ready for the home opener Tuesday with Elgin.

Mike Nichol put together a 19 point game to complement Arden's efforts and Ed Chmiel canned eight pints.

LAKE COUNTY'S 6-8 Bud Anderson knew best what to do with the ball as he led his team with 24 points.

St. Laurence, Joliet Catholic celebrate

NORMAL, Ill. (UPI) — What Matt Oskielunas termed "just another extra point" meant the state high school championship in class 5A for his St. Laurence football team.

Oskielunas' point after a touchdown gave the Vikings a 22-21 triumph in overtime over Glenbard West in a game played in 11-degree temperatures Saturday night. In the afternoon, with the temperatures ranging from 19 down to 15, Joliet Catholic retained the 4A crown with a 16-8 decision over Danville.

Oskielunas had plenty of time to ponder his game-winning kick. After the teams wound up 15-15 at the end of regulation time, Glenbard West ran the first four plays in overtime and John Odom ran three yards for a touchdown on the fourth and last play of the series. The Hilltoppers gambled then on a two-point conversion, but Odom was pulled down short of the goal line.

"I had a lot of time to think about it," Oskielunas said. "I knew we were going to kick. They only had six points on us and I tried to keep as calm as I could, to think of it as just another extra point. It was a good snap and good blocking. It was a team effort or I never could have got it off."

St. Laurence, ranked No. 1 in the state among the larger schools, might have won in regulation time except for its own errors. It lost the ball four times on fumbles, one of them setting up a field goal for Glenbard West, while a blocked punt plus a 40-yard run by quarterback Keith Jaske to the Vikings two helped Glenbard to a 9-0 lead.
